Roosevelt Orders Population In Military Areas Under Control of Army.

FDR Exercises War Powers In Effort to Solve Japanese Problem.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — All residents of the west coast, particularly Japanese, German and Italian aliens today are subject to mass evacuations from regions which the army may define as "military areas."

In an effort to reduce fifth-column activities, President Roosevelt transferred control over populations in military areas from the justice department directly to Secretary of War Stimson and his army commanders.

Explaining the president's executive order, which accomplished the transfer, Attorney General Biddle declared that the army was concentrating at present in defining "military areas" only in the California-Oregon-Washington region.

"Of course, this is a Japanese problem," Biddle said. "You all know that the Japanese problem is a serious one."

He stressed, however, that the order was purposely worded broadly to include all persons, whether aliens or citizens, as well as any regions which the army may define as "military areas."

The determination of "military areas," evacuations, and controls over persons remained within the defined areas, will be conducted solely by the war department, Biddle declared.

The president, in the most sweeping domestic application of his wartime powers to date, gave the secretary of war and his army commanders complete authority "to prescribe military areas, in such places and of such extent as he or the appropriate military commanders may determine from which any or all persons may be excluded, and with respect to which, the right of any person to enter, remain in, or leave, shall

'Life' Looks on Mansfield Again For Pix and Story

Mansfield may find itself in Life magazine for the second time within a year if research started in the city today by a Life editorial assistant develops material required for a story and pictures.

Miss Dorothy Jane Larson came to Mansfield from New York yesterday to survey the city's defense efforts both industrial and civilian and laid the groundwork by conferring with officials of the Chamber of Commerce and both Scouting organizations.

She is the third Life representative to visit Mansfield within the year as last June, Alfred Eisenstaedt, photographer, and Miss Lisbeth de Morinni, editorial associate, spent two weeks in the city while covering graduation exercises at Mansfield Senior High school.

Miss Larson said today that she chose Mansfield for her survey because she wanted a central location, preferably in Ohio, that was industrially representative and typical of small cities in general.

Her conferences so far have been held with John C. Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Miss Eleanor Bond, executive secretary, and Mrs. John W. Graham, commissioner of the Mansfield Girl Scouts, and Floyd Dent, Boy Scout executive secretary.

Westinghouse Reveals Details, Scope of War Effort And Outlook for Future to Community Cross-Section

By ALVIN L. KRIEG

WESTINGHOUSE, Mansfield's largest industrial plant and central cog in the city's employment picture, had given its answers today to two questions the community has been asking.

Recognizing there has been a great deal of talk, and speculation, and rumor, the company took the bull by the horns yesterday and gave the city answers to these questions:

What's the status of the plant's war effort, and

What's the employment picture for the plant?

To the first of these, the answer was a clear picture of the enormous task the company has undertaken in converting its plant from production of ranges and refrigerators to turning out binoculars, shells, and other war products. It was a picture of a company working feverishly, expending huge sums of money, training the supervisors and workers, readying buildings and installing machines.

To the second question, the answer, for the long haul, was reasonably optimistic. It was the company's estimate of a favorable employment curve in the late months of this year, following a tapering off during the summer while the transition from peace to war basis is made complete.

Most significant point of the employment story was this:

By year-end employment is expected to reach 4,300, including 500 office and other salaried workers. This compares with the plant's all-time peak of 5,000 last August. The year-end estimate is figured on the basis of orders in hand, and the company is negotiating on numerous other contracts for war goods.

Above is the group of 65 representatives Mansfield citizens who assembled at the Westinghouse plant yesterday to hear company officials outline the status of the company's war effort in the Mansfield plant. Also present were 40 company representatives. After a luncheon and talks by top officials of the Westinghouse merchandising division, the group was taken on a tour through the areas of the plant where its two major war orders received to date—for binoculars and armor-piercing shot, will be manufactured.

WAR MATERIAL PILING UP ON COAST WHARVES

Lack of Shipping Seen as Bottleneck In Pacific Battle Effort.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Crated war materials were reported to be piling up on American wharves awaiting urgently needed cargo ships to carry them to the war Pacific front.

And lack of sufficient shipping, rather than inadequate production, was described authoritatively as the most serious obstacle in the way of bolstering distant lines. However, there was a conviction in the capital that shipping would be only a temporary bottleneck.

A senate appropriations subcommittee was assured by Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson yesterday that manufacture of planes, tanks and guns was going forward rapidly. From Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the maritime commission members received a less encouraging description of the difficulties in turning out cargo vessels.

The committee is to act Monday on the $32,070,901,900 army-navy appropriations bill, carrying $3,852,000,000 in direct appropriations and contract authorizations for construction of 1,476 merchant ships. The bill contemplates speeding up production to a rate of two ships a day.

Land was said to have told the committee that every effort was being made to alleviate shortages in materials, particularly steel, and to hold down labor disputes which have interrupted construction. He told reporters later that "the rate of construction is not enough."

Committee members were said to have been informed that ship losses due to enemy action were regarded as relatively small, but that even so materials were be-

Chile Station Reports Two Calls From U. S. Ships.

RIO DE JANEIRO —(U.P.)— Chile's Antofagasta naval radio station heard SOS calls from two American freighters today, apparently appealing for aid against a German submarine attack in the Caribbean.

The position of the ships was not determined.

The Chilean Valparaiso naval station radio has heard distress calls from five ships yesterday, apparently as they were under submarine attack. No positions were given it was reported unofficially that the ships were in the Pacific.

An SOS from one of the ships, an American steamship, said the crew was abandoning the vessel.

The government here ordered a police guard stationed at German business premises and homes in fear of mob violence.

Elderly Mansfielder Goes Free Following Lie Tests

Prosecutor Says Toledo Device Convinces Him That Man Accused In Embezzlement Is Innocent.

The elderly bookkeeper for a Mansfield beer distributing firm cleared himself of suspicion in the alleged embezzlement of $800 from his firm yesterday by coming through a three-hour lie detector test in Toledo with flying colors.

Prosecutor Harold Lutz said the bookkeeper, who is past 60 years old, proved "as far as we could see that he is innocent." No charge had been filed against the man and none will be filed, the prosecutor said.

The bookkeeper told authorities he was "glad to take the test" as an opportunity to prove his innocence. Following the test, he agreed to help audit the company's books in an effort to find where the shortage occurred.

Lutz said the lie detector, located in the Toledo police station, records the heart action, pulse, blood pressure, and muscular reaction of the subject while he is being questioned by officers.

More than 3,500 suspects were tested by the Toledo detector last year and authorities there said two or three inmates of the Ohio penitentiary were released on the evidence of innocence provided by the detector.

Hershey Predicts U. S. Will Allocate Manpower.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Declaring this nation has arrived at the time when "nobody can refuse to work for the government," National Draft Director Lewis B. Hershey today predicted that the United States must inevitably resort to government allocation of manpower to industry as well as to the armed forces.

In one of the longest press conference he has held, Gen. Hershey made it plain that he believes that the nation is on the verge of conscription of all manpower.

"You can't refuse to work for the government whether you run a corporation, a labor union or a farm," he said.

HORSES AGAIN IN WAR ROLES, BREEDERS TOLD

Richland Association Hears Thousands Are Needed to Supply War Department.

Shoved into the background by the rapid development of mechanical farm equipment, horses are staging a comeback in the present World war and are right in the midst of the fighting with tanks and trucks, L. P. McCann of Ohio State university told 63 Richland county horse breeders at their annual dinner last night in the First Methodist church.

Sturdy and speedy horses are as popular in the war with Japan and Germany as they were in the days of Napoleon and George Washington, McCann said.

It costs much less to buy and feed a horse than to build and maintain a tank or truck and the horse travels nearer the pace of a walking man than the swifter mechanized units, McCann asserted.

Horses also are more flexible than trucks and tractors for pulling supplies and carrying soldiers, frequently being able to negotiate cliffs and swamps that would stall mechanized units, he added.

The war department is buying thousands of horses in the 900 to 1150-pound class and 15 or 16 hands high for cavalry use. Besides, the army needs animals weighing from 1600 to 1700 pounds and 15½ to 16½ hands tall for draft or artillery use, McCann said. The cavalry horses must be of solid color.

McCann told the group that Germany was buying as many as 5,000 horses per month in the United States as late as 1940 for war service and both the Russian and Nazi armies are using large numbers of them now.

D. J. Kays, head of the animal husbandry department at Ohio State university, gave an illustrated talk on the history and development of the horses. He used lantern slides to show the improvement in breeds in recent years.

PLAN CONVOYS

U. S., Sister Republics Work On Guard For Shipping.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles today announced that the United States is planning to work out with the other American republics plans for the convoying of shipping in western hemisphere waters.

Sinking of two Brazilian ships off the American Atlantic coast is understood to have prompted this government to speed up plans for the convoying of shipping between this country and Latin America.

Welles said that the question of convoys would be one of the first measures to be discussed at the forthcoming meeting in Washington of the inter-American defense commission. He said that it would be taken for granted that practical measures of this character will be worked out in the very near future.

Transport and Cruisers Hit From Air, Sea

U. S. Dive Bombers Blast at Invasion Fleet; Jap 'Zero' Fighters Shot Down as They Attempt to Stave Off United Nations Assault.

BULLETIN

BATAVIA — (UP) — Eighteen Japanese ships—including five cruisers and two destroyers—have been sunk or damaged in a great three-day naval battle in defense of Java, it was officially reported today.

(By International News Service)

BATAVIA—American and Dutch aircraft and naval units, striking furiously against the Japanese invaders in the narrow waters surrounding Java, have blasted numerous enemy warships and transports in a raging two-day battle, it was announced today in a series of communiques.

One large enemy transport was known to have been sunk yesterday by bombers southeast of Bali, while a number of direct hits were scored on Japanese cruisers and destroyers.

Roaring to the attack on Thursday night against Japanese invaders off the northeast coast of storied Bali, American destroyers and Dutch destroyers and cruisers seriously damaged two Japanese cruisers and two destroyers.

Operating in the Far East for the first time, U. S. army dive bombers yesterday blasted a Japanese invasion fleet consisting of two cruisers, four or five destroyers and four troop-laden transports.

Two enemy cruisers and two destroyers were seriously damaged during the battle Thursday. One of the enemy ships burst into flames and later blew up.

One large transport was sunk Friday.

A number of direct hits were scored on enemy cruisers and destroyers and direct hits were scored on eight other ships.

Thursday's action was fought by United Nations' naval units.

The assault yesterday was delivered by American and Dutch bombers, including U. S. army A-24 dive bombers and U. S. flying fortresses.

Referring to the air assault yesterday, a communique from the headquarters of the southwest Pacific command related:

"One of the cruisers which received two direct hits of heavy bombs was seen to be stationary and on fire after the attack.

During another attack in the same area on two enemy cruisers and two destroyers, Japanese "zero" fighters tried to fight off the Allied bombers but in turn were driven off," the communique said.

"Dive bombers also attacked Nipponese vessels engaged in landing operations near Den Pasar. Den Pasar in South Bali has the island's largest airport. It also was a popular tourist center.

"Several hits were observed on four Japanese ships.

"Here again 'zero' fighters engaged with Allied planes. Three enemy planes were shot down, while the Allies lost two fighters.

"Another successful attack was made by our bombers on enemy merchants in the Musi river. Palembang, Sumatra, on the Musi, was occupied by enemy air and sea troops this week.

"Two direct hits were scored on an 8,000-ton vessel, another bomb hit the bridge of a 5,000-ton ship and several near misses were scored on a second 8,000-ton vessel.

"All these attacks were carried out from low altitudes.

"Allied planes also staged a raid on the Banka straits be-

BARE FISTS: Dutch Savagely Battle Invaders at Palembang

By HAROLD GUARD
(UP Staff Correspondent)

BATAVIA, N. E. I.—The Dutch savagely battled the Japanese invaders at Palembang with their bare fists, witnesses who have just arrived from Sumatra said.

The British fought parachutists with anti-aircraft guns.

A British colonel who fought on Feb. 19, when parachutists first landed, said a detachment was isolated and forced to fight a land battle with Bofors anti-aircraft guns.

"My boys did a wonderful job of firing time fuses at almost point-blank range, blasting the monkey-like parachute troops," he said. "I don't suppose anything like that happened before.

The colonel said his men were part of an English regiment, most of whom were from Birmingham, who were diverted to Malaya while en route to the Caucasus.

"We spent a short time in Malaya, then a section of us went to Sumatra," he said. "We were about 300 strong at Palembang and were right on the spot when the paratroops came. I'm afraid we all didn't get out."

Witnesses said the aircraft maintenance men fought Japanese soldiers with their fists.

An Indonesian air station crew stuck to its post until the last minute. I was told that the foreman actually radioed the head office to ask whether it was all

DASH: Three Nazi Warships Reported Speeding to Norway

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Three powerful German warships today were reported racing to Trondheim, Norway, in a sudden maneuver designed to keep British naval units tied up in the North Sea.

A Stockholm dispatch to the London Daily Express said it was reported the 35,000-ton Nazi battleship Tirpitz, the 10,000-ton pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and the 10,000-ton cruiser Admiral Hipper steamed out of their German bases and up the Norwegian coast toward Trondheim.

From there, the Stockholm report said, the German vessels will probably raid convoys carrying American and British supplies to Murmansk for delivery to Russia's armies.

Authoritative British circles said they had no confirmation of the Stockholm report and indicated they were inclined to be skeptical as to its accuracy. They added that for the past 10 days numerous rumors have been circulating regarding the whereabouts of the Tirpitz, the Admiral Scheer and the Admiral Hipper.

According to the Express, the 26,000-ton Nazi battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen are expected to make a similar move after they are repaired.

The Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen recently broke out of

GEN. JOHNSON: Charge U. S. Planes Grounded By Probe

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — For more than eight years there has been close to the heart of this administration a nest of people whom we have called the New Dealers.

Gen. Johnson.

It is a mistake to classify them all in one lump as men and women of the same cast of mind. They are far from that. Their constant shifting and coming and going would be proof enough of that, if there were not evidence enough otherwise.

They range from almost outright communists to staunchly partisan Democrats who have no use whatever for any of these theories but who believe that a Democratic president can do no wrong. Others are intellectual theorists who believe that our form of government has become too hide-bound (they are probably right) and are hell bent on trying something new.

Still others are ambitious men, even of the industrial type, who despise the whole doctrine, but think it is the safest hide-away from the catastrophe they fear. Others are immature collegians who can draw down more salaries in the monstrous bureaucracy that has been built than they ever dreamed of enjoying for years at least.

Varied as has been their type, they are alike in one thing. They don't care a hang for the solvency and credit of the United States. They have no hesitancy in spending billions.

Some, like Harry Hopkins who is pretty nearly tops among them, have spent or given away more of other people's money than any other human being since the world began.

Some indulge in this fabulous squandering because they know little of its effect and feel no responsibility for it. Others, like A. A. Berle, perhaps the best informed and most clear-headed of the lot, boldly told a senate committee that its effect, if not its purpose, was to put the great industries of the country and, by implication, all private property under such a burden of federal obligation that the government would own or at least control it all.

They have gone very far. There is no limit in sight to federal debt. The war advanced their plan—if there was a plan—by leagues.

* * *

They have failed in many of their principal purposes But they are never daunted. If one new and untried theory doesn't work, they blithely pass on to another.

This is all an old story and what has been said was by way of thundering preface. For never forget this is the real crew directing our effort in this war

A few industrialists may flit in, but they promptly flit out if they are not acceptable to this group. Anybody who thinks that Donald Nelson, industrialist though he is, wasn't weighed in their balance and found not wanting, just doesn't know his Washington groceries.

All of which brings me up to the point of this piece To prosecute this war without fantastic failure should this gang go? My answer is emphatically no

In the first place it is too late They and theirs are so much a part of government, twined into its very fiber, that such a house-cleaning would risk collapse and chaos

In the second place it is impossible. The number 1 man is responsible for them and you can't get rid of the president

Hard as it is, we must do the best we can with the tools we have.

SOVIETS HONOR GIRL GUERRILLA NAZIS HANGED

Reveal Story of Bravery and Torture In Making Heroine Of Moscow School Pupil.

MOSCOW—Zoya Kosmodemyanskaya, 18, a tall, shapely, dark-eyed guerrilla who stood on a German gallows and exhorted her countrymen to smite and burn the Nazis until they were exterminated, was acclaimed a hero of the Soviet Union posthumously today.

The Tass News agency said she had just been promoted to the 10th grade of the 202nd Moscow secondary school when the war broke out. She left her mother and brother and joined a guerrilla detachment.

It operated in a woods for two weeks, harrying and killing Germans, the communique released through the Tass agency, said Others in the band wanted to move into the town of Petrischevo, which was swarming with Germans.

She crept up to an important objective and was about to set it on fire when German sentries seized her. They took her to a house where German officers were living. The officers brusquely ordered the Russian owners of the house to the kitchen, but they heard the Germans questioning her and Zoya saying:

"No! No! I will not tell!" to one demand after another

Then a leather belt cracked across her body. The Russians in the kitchen counted 200 lashes, but didn't hear her utter a sound. She was taken to the home of Gassili Kulik. She had been deprived of her shoes, and was forced to walk barefoot over the snow. Soldiers held lighted matches to her chin. One scraped a saw across her back.

She was taken to the village square where the Germans had erected a gallows Ten horsemen with drawn sabres were around it Local residents had been ordered to attend

The hangman put her on a box and threw a noose around her neck One of the officers focusing his camera on the gallows. The commandant made a sign to the hangman to wait

"You hang me now but I'm not alone" she said "There are 200,000,000 of us You won't hang everybody. I shall be avenged Soldiers, surrender before it is too late Victory will be ours."

The hangman kicked the box from under her as the crowd in the square wept.

OFFICIALS SAY PARTS NEEDED FOR WARCRAFT

Assert NLRB Investigation Keeps Planes Out of Air In Combat Areas.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Some United States airplanes were reported today to be grounded in the Far East, the Middle East and in this country for lack of parts whose production may be further curtailed by a national labor relations board investigation of a dispute in two Curtiss-Wright plants.

One responsible official estimated the number of grounded planes in the hundreds and said half of them were in combat areas Checking other sources, however, the United Press was informed that the number of grounded planes was comparatively small and that the parts situation—which had been acute—had shown recent and basically satisfactory improvement.

NLRB headquarters told the United Press that the Curtiss-Wright case was pending in the New York regional office.

The Curtiss-Wright problem is only one of several involving various types of labor controversies which are greatly disturbing some persons here. The number of disputes—not strikes—was said to have increased recently beyond anything recorded in some previous months.

The two plants are the supply source of parts of two vital types of United States battle planes. The dispute involves an American Federation of Labor machinists' union and United Automobile Workers' union (CIO) complaint against an alleged company dominated union was set up in both plants under authority of the NLRB which now entertains a complaint against it.

Another labor sore spot which probably was adjusted by a war labor board ruling yesterday involved the Spicer Manufacturing company plant at Toledo, O. Official reports said an expansion program had been held up there for three weeks by a jurisdiction dispute between the AFL building trades engaged on the construction job and the CIO United Automobile Workers who are maintenance employes in the Spicer plant.

Machinery which production officials said should have been on the job making transmissions for combat vehicles actually lay rusting in the open while the jurisdictional battle progressed.

It is the judgment of some persons familiar with war production that the damage to the war effort caused by the Spicer dispute was very serious. It is described as worse than anything since the protracted Allis-Chalmers strike which continued for weeks. The case was certified to the war labor board on Jan. 29 and now has been settled 22 days later.

GUARD POSTED AGAINST COUP

Police Rushed to Uruguayan Buildings Following Political Dispute.

(By United Press)

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Strong police detachments were rushed to public buildings, including the legislative palace, and the city electric light plant today against a possible coup by opposition political elements as the result of a political dispute which caused President Alfredo Baldomir to dissolve parliament

The senate, at the end of turbulent night session, approved a motion early today repudiating a three-hour speech by a government spokesman which opposition members interpreted as a threat that the national election set for March 29 would be postponed or canceled.

Soon afterward Gen. Julio A Roletti resigned as defense minister in the cabinet Gen. Baldomir asked Foreign Minister Alberto Guani to take over the war ministry for the present, in addition to his own office.

A reorganized electoal court met yesterday after several nominees of it had refused to serve. It was reported that their refusal was due to a demand by President Baldomir that the court rule that his program of constitutional reform be regarded as approved in the coming election if a simple majority of voters favored it.

The constitution requires that in such a referendum a majority of the entire registered electorate must vote approval Baldomir has held that this system is unfair because registration is compulsory but voting is not.

BRICKER CALLS ON OHIOANS TO TAKE UP HOE TO HELP WIN WAR

COLUMBUS —(U P)— Gov. John W. Bricker today called upon "all farmers and town and surburban people who have suitable ground and garden facilities" to take up the hoe to help the United States win the war.

The governor proclaimed next week as home food garden enrollment week and asked every Ohioan with an available plot of land to join the national victory garden program and begin raising vegetables at home.

He cautioned, however, against repetition of the World war practice of plowing up lawns and digging up shrubs to provide space for "victory gardens"

Bricker said the state-wide "victory garden" program, which will go into effect Monday with registration of home gardeners, was designated to provide more nutritious food.

Production of vegetables at home will release more of the state's commercial vegetable production for the balance of the American people, the armed forces and lease-lend shipments, he said.

Local defense councils will be asked to appoint committees to direct the "victory garden" program in their communities. Registration of amateur gardeners will be conducted through volunteer offices and defense councils.

Says Governor Costs Schools More Than $15,000,000.

COLUMBUS —(U P)— J. Freer Bittinger, chairman of the Democratic state committee, charged today that abolition of the earmarking of public funds by Gov John W. Bricker had cost Ohio schools more than $15,000,000 and an opportunity to pay off outstanding indebtednesses.

Here is one of the last pictures taken of General Douglas MacArthur, (right) U. S. Philippine commander, before the war began. Just released by the U. MacArthur's dispatches from the Batan war front.

Reds Report Smashing Attack

MOSCOW — (INS) — Smashing new Russian advances on the front outside Leningrad were reported in Soviet advices today.

The Leningrad radio said Red army units penetrated the first and second German lines of defense outside Russia's second city and scored "great" advances. Nazi counter-attacks were described as unsuccessful.

The newspaper Izvestia reported that "millions" of fully trained Russian reserves are now ready to be thrown into battle.

(The German radio "admits for the first time that bitter fighting is going on for the possession of the Kharkov-Taganrog railway," the British radio said in a broadcast recorded at the CBS short wave listening station.

Confident Reds Can Meet Offensive

LONDON —(INS)— Complete confidence in Soviet Russia's ability to withstand the expected German spring offensive coupled with the belief that Hitler can be crushed by the end of 1942, was expressed to me today by one of Russia's veteran diplomats.

"The difficult separate fronts are slowly becoming integrated but I believe the heaviest attack will be directed against the southwest, with Moscow and Leningrad threatened as secondary objectives," he said.

The diplomat warmly praised both Britain and the United States. He said Britain had kept her scheduled promises of aid, while the United States was somewhat behind because of shipping difficulties, which now have been straightened out.

He revealed that the British were sending their newest tanks and most modern weapons to the Russian front.

Apparently Netherlands East Indies authorities in Java have taken to heart the lessons of Malaya and Singapore. There are plenty of preparations.

I had my first opportunity yesterday since arriving from Singapore to talk to the man on the street about his reaction to the threat of invasion.

The general attitude is: "It can't happen here."

I have heard that before, and this time I hope I heave heard right.

Meanwhile, Japanese planes ranged far and wide over Java, bombing the town of Banjoewangi in East Java, and striking at airports on both ends of the island.

Thirty-nine civilians were killed and 15 injured in the raid of Banjoewangi, as a heavy bomb scored a direct hit on an air raid shelter. Thirteen bombs were dropped on the town.

Two persons were severely wounded and ten slightly injured in the raid on an east Java airport. No casualties were reported from the raid in west Java, although some damage was admitted.

Dive Bombers In Action Off Bali

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— American dive bombers are in action on the Dutch East Indies front, the war department revealed today in a communique reporting a series of attacks by U. S. aircraft on a Japanese fleet off Bali.

The department disclosed that heavy artillery dueling has been renewed in Batan and Manila bay. Japanese planes made "frequent trips" over Gen. MacArthur's Batan lines dropping incendiary bombs, it said.

Japs Force Way Across Bilin River

RANGOON — (INS) — Japanese troops have succeeded in forcing a crossing of the Bilin river north of Bilin, an official communique conceded today, but were driven back in heavy counter-assaults during fierce fighting in which casualties are extremely heavy on both sides.

The Japanese tried to cross the Bilin river in force at another point near its mouth but were driven back into the water, it was stated.

The latest communique follows:

"Since our withdrawal behind the Bilin river, the enemy first succeeded in crossing the river north of Bilin. Our forward brigades were subjected to a heavy attack and immediately launched a counter-attack.

"The enemy continually tried to envelop our left flank while increasing pressure on the right, by means of constant counter-attacks.

"Our main positions are intact. Fighting is extremely fierce with heavy casualties on both sides.

"Enemy soldiers tried to cross near the mouth of the Bilin river, but our troops drove them into the river."

See Trouble Over Timor Invasion

LONDON — (INS) — Possibility that the asserted Japanese invasion of Timor island, 400 miles northwest of the Australian base of Port Darwin, may lead to trouble between the Nipponese and Portuguese governments was reported in London today.

(At Canberra, Army Minister Francis M. Forde said the Australian government had no information regarding the situation on Timor island. It was believed commuications between Timor and Australia have been severed.)

A London News-Chronicle dispatch from Lisbon said the Portuguese government is not satisfied with Japanese explanations regarding the asserted landing of Nipponese forces on the Portuguese half of Timor island.

This dispatch said flatly that the Lisbon government considered the Japanese ambassador's note regarding Timor unsatisfactory.

Japs Use 'Pearl Harbor Technique'

SYDNEY—(INS)—Japanese dive-bombers striking at Darwin on Thursday used "Pearl Harbor technique" of lightning-fast air assault in great force to blast the North Australian port, eye-witnesses arriving at Townsville reported today.

The first Japanese bombers whizzed over Darwin less than two minutes after the first air raid alert was sounded in the city, it was said.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 21, 1942.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and pity the speeders who are wasting precious tire mileage.

It seems quite sure that either the tax collectors or the draft boards will remember "the forgotten man."

Spring approaches with no world fair scheduled—at the very time when a "World of Yesterday" would recall many pleasant memories.

Defense Does Not Win Wars

MOVES toward changing emphasis from "defensive" to "offensive" warfare came this week in the form of a statement by Secretary of War Stimson, who said: "The only way to successfully end this war is to mass our forces into offensive action and carry the war to the enemy."

This broke ground for disclosure that, in order to muster sufficient strength for an effective offensive, it will be impossible to scatter defense forces all along the thousands of miles of Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and that "sporadic" Axis attacks may be expected at some coastal points.

Earlier in the week President Roosevelt had told a press conference group that "the enemy could shell New York, or drop bombs on Detroit—under certain conditions." And it had already been demonstrated that the West coast is not free from danger of air attack.

With German submarines active during the week in the Caribbean area and creeping closer toward the vital Panama canal section, it appears that the president and the secretary of war stated no more than the obvious when they mentioned the possibility—or probability—of eventual Axis attacks on the continental United States.

It has also been quite apparent that all vulnerable points at which a surprise attack might be directed cannot be adequately protected at all times—just as it has been impossible to concentrate sufficient force everywhere in the Far East to successfully resist Japanese assaults.

The extent to which "defense" has been stressed in this country makes it difficult for many people to realize that "defensive" wars are never won, and that energetically pursued offensive action will be necessary before the United Nations can hope to turn the present tide of defeats into the successes that must precede final victory.

While Detroit was mentioned specifically by President Roosevelt in his reference to the possibility of American cities being bombed, it may be assumed that this would apply with equal force to many other large cities, particularly those extensively engaged in war production.

In addition to United States coast lines, it has become apparent that considerable responsibility will rest on this country to guard Central and South America against invasion attempts by the Axis, from east and west, and Brazil is already asking for the military co-operation promised at the recent Rio conference.

While production to meet war needs is being rapidly stepped up it would be unwise for anyone to disregard the seriousness of the present situation or to feel that this war can be won without everybody sharing in the work and sacrifices that will be required from now until the war is ended in victory.

Don't Pass Your Cold Around

A DOCTOR in Stanford University, who has been using eight hundred students in making a study of colds, reports some interesting results.

Weight seems to be as good a protection as anything. The heavy-weights have colds only half as often as the light-weights.

Temperatures, he finds, have very little to do with catching cold. Work is a pretty good preventive—students working their way through college have only three-fourths as many colds as the others. Athletics seem to have no influence one way or the other.

There are two peak times for catching colds, November and February, and starting a movement to get those months out of the calendar will do no good.

Colds don't just happen, but are infectious—caught from others—and apparently the only real safeguard is to keep away from people who have them, which is easier said than done.

The conclusion of the whole matter might be simply this—that the all-too-common cold is not so much a disease as a social problem. If everybody with a cold would keep away from other people during the infectious period, the disease might disappear.

Heart Check-up Before Flying

DR. ASHTON GRAYBIEL, writing in Aviation Medicine, says if your heart is strong enough to let you walk, it's strong enough to let you fly. Heart failure may be precipitated by lack of oxygen due to high altitudes, he says, but this seldom happens except in the most severe cases. In his research he found that four cases of severe coronary artery disease had been subjected to 45 minutes of air conditions like those at 14,500 feet and suffered no pain or ill effects.

Only three in a total of 7,000,000 airline passengers have died of heart failure while in the air. That is so small a proportion that it is possible the air had nothing to do with it—death from heart failure might have come to those three on land at the same time. Dr. Graybiel's advice is, however, that persons with certain definite heart ailments should not fly. They should not rapidly enter high altitudes under any conditions.

It is sensible for anyone who suspects he may have difficulty with high altitudes, whether he has heart trouble or not, to get a check-up by his physician before he goes up too high. It might not hurt him, but he'd better be sure.

Great is the adaptability of the human frame. It is not so many years since it was believed that no human being could survive speed greater than thirty miles per hour. Now they take 300 miles per hour and altitudes of 10,000 feet and come right down at the next regular stop without bad effects.

Sugar Promised for Canning

SUGAR rationing, on the basis of three quarters of a pound per person each week, does not mean that no additional sugar will be available when canning season comes around.

It has been announced by Price Administrator Henderson, sanctioned by the war production board, that a maximum of 200 pounds of sugar per family will be allowed for home canning, when the time comes.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—The efforts to stem the tide of humanity moving toward Washington by warning parasites to get out of town and moving a handful of government agencies to other cities have proved about as effective as trying to bail out the ocean with a sieve. The federal powers-that-be are now preparing to ACT.

The president has ordered a resurvey of personnel requirements for the balance of this fiscal year and the fiscal year 1942-43, on the basis of the new 44-hour work week. He says specially that every man and woman not absolutely needed must be released for war work. He further has ordered that the bureau of the budget resurvey the entire government personnel set-up, here and in the field, to determine the relationship of appropriations to necessary man-hours of work.

* * *

GOVERNMENT surveys are a dime a dozen. Under ordinary circumstances, there would be no reason to believe that either of the two mentioned would result in action. But there are important forces bearing down on the present situation. In the first place, there are many indications that the people of the United States—the voters—are fed up with government dalliance, delays, red tape and mismanagement in administration of this war. A few weeks ago and months before that, federal officials were screaming that the civilian population would have to forget "business as usual." Now a preponderance of the congressional and executive mail is stating in no uncertain terms that it is far past the time when elective and appointive officials should have forgotten "government as usual."

Secondly and just as important, because the men who make the laws and administer them are beginning to see it around them everyday, is that Washington is rapidly approaching the saturation point. It will not come because of lack of office space, as serious as that condition has been and still is. It will come because of lack of housing.

* * *

AS IRONICAL as it may seem—come spring and summer, people with good jobs and money in their pockets may be sleeping in the capital parks because they cannot find homes. Ten years ago, homes were to be had for a mere promise to pay something—almost anything—and people were sleeping in the parks here because they had no jobs.

Already there are trailer towns from Hains Point to the suburbs of Maryland and Virginia. In unofficial circles, there is talk that tent cities will have to come next.

Defense Idea Retards War Effort

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

A GREAT mistake was made by those who told us it was "national defense" we were preparing for, according to war strategists at the present stage of the game.

Everlasting harping on defense's importance, say these critics, resulted in giving the country a defense complex, and it's slow work stirring our people up to a realization of the fact that we'll best defend ourselves by getting into offensive action as speedily as possible.

Not only, it's complained, was our psychology entirely too inoffensive until after the enemy actually had attacked us, but the attack caught us under-equipped to reciprocate effectively with attacks from our own shores.

We're particularly blamed for aviatorial inadequacies. The United Nations all are blamed, it's true, for numerical insufficiencies in planes and competent flyers to handle them, but we are especially blamed considering that the science of heavenly navigation was of American origin, that we developed it in advance of all others, and yet the Battle of the Pacific started with the Japs obviously outclassing us in cloudland.

The reasoning is that planes pre-eminently are offensive weapons.

If defense is to be regarded as the sole consideration perhaps anti-aircraft batteries can attend fairly capably to visiting enemy bombers, but, to go strafe the foemen initiatorially, plenty of planes are essential.

Intentions Good.

Well, we've got some and good ones, and we're building more as fast as intensively-run industries can produce 'em. Nevertheless, we were shy on the required number of them when Nippon unexpectedly took the warpath against us, and the pro-offense advocates attribute our shortage in 'em to defense sentiment on our public's part.

It's conceded that the term national defense was employed with the best of intentions. American leadership didn't believe that the people generally would indorse a program of offensive preparation, so they called it a defensive policy, which nobody could object to; the fiercest isolationists o. k.'d it. However, it took better with our average citizenry than, maybe, was desirable, and the idea wears off rather gradually.

Chairman James G. Schugham of the representatives' naval appropriations sub-committee discussed the plane's offensive potentialities exhaustively in the lower congressional chamber recently.

He ventured the prediction that the "mastery in future wars" will be settled by low-flying bombers.

This was as strong a statement as I've heard concerning aviation. It's importance is widely recognized, but Schugham's view is that it'll be decisive—the ultimate factor as to mastery. He's a recognized authority concerning army and navy flying, though, and his forecasts aren't to be sneezed at.

In the course of the same congressional discussion the point was made that "man power, just at present, isn't nearly as vital as air power."

Students of the situation calculate that the Japs haven't available, for service in the southwestern Pacific, not counting their force in China, much in excess of 500,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen, which isn't more than the United Nations should be able to match easily. Yet they've progressed formidably, as everybody knows, in Malaya and the Philippines and have the Netherlands Indies and Australia on anxious seats. Why and how? The explanation given is that their flyers have accomplished it for them.

Their groundlings and sealings alone seemingly can be licked, even by inferior numbers, but their airmanship makes 'em dangerous.

It generally is agreed that, for our own wartime purposes, we could catch up with Jap aviation in jig time, but we have to keep the rest of the United Nations supplied also.

Saw First Church Burn.

Editor News-Journal:

The News-Journal brought sad tidings 300 miles west of Mansfield. We were living on Washington avenue in 1870, when the other Congregational church burned down. Well do I remember seeing the flames leaping up that August day.

The church that just burned was a replica of what was known in Chicago then as the Union Park Congregational church, now called the First Congregational. The spire of this one was struck by lightning a few years ago and never replaced.

In speaking of "Auntie" Bradford, I would like to say that she was a very fine colored lady. Her husband was a cook for Co. E, 32d Ohio regiment, in the Civil war. My father was drum major of that company.

"Auntie" Bradford gave a picnic for children on Emancipation day and my sister and I were included on account of my father. It was a great honor to be invited to that picnic. "Auntie" Bradford was a slender brown lady, and the children loved her.

Everything in Mansfield is dear to me, as I was born there, as were all of my family. We came to Chicago in April 1872, after the Chicago fire.

Observations By Newcomer.

Editor News-Journal:

Because I am a newcomer in Mansfield, it is with some hesitancy I write concerning the burning of the First Congregational church, beloved to so many. In the short time our family has lived here, we too had learned to admire its architecture, reverence its beauty and majesty, and feel its spirit of friendliness.

It was with interest that I noted the willing spirit of co-operation of some of the other churches in offering their pulpits for the use of this congregation. It occurs to me, however, that inasmuch as all churches are presumably teaching the divine precepts of Jesus, the Christ, why would it be necessary, should this church accept one of these many offers, to hold separate services? Their aims and hopes and admonitions are all one and the same, are they not?

Perhaps the burning of this sacred edifice was an omen that now, indeed, is the time for the uniting of all religions into one, just as it is the time for unification of the whole world.

George Townshend, M. A., canon of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin: Archdeacon of Clonfert, in his new book "The Heart of The Gospel" said: "The Bible is a study in world history. It is man's first effort to write a complete history of the human race from its beginning to its climax in the unification of all peoples and the establishment of a universal religion. The first picture presented therein is that of human unity in its simplest form: that of a single family. The last picture is that of a unity manifold and universal in which all kindreds and tongues and peoples and nations are gathered into one and unified in the enjoyment of a common worship, a common happiness, a common glory."

"The Heart of The Gospel" is a most interesting and enlightening book, which makes one realize that there is a purpose in life and that purpose is the fulfillment of God's great divine plan for the unification of all religions, races and peoples.

Man About Manhattan

Leaf From History

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There used to be a candlemaker at No. 50 on Lower Broadway whose two children, a boy and a girl, grew up to influence the whole course of American history. He was a soap boiler as well as a "tallow chandler" and it was his daughter who married Matthew Calbraith Perry, the American admiral who "opened up" Japan. The boy, John Slidell, after a number of youthful indiscretions which included a duel with a theatrical manager over the affections of an actress, fled south, took up the practice of law, and later became Jefferson Davis's special envoy to the Court of Napoleon III in an exciting but futile effort to win French recognition for the Confederate States of America.

I went down to 50 Broadway to have a look at the old site of the elder John Slidell's tallow and soap establishment. In its place today stands a 37-story building known officially as Fifty Broadway. Across the street, at 45, is the Merchant Marine Enrolling station. To the right is the gigantic Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., and a few doors further on rises what is perhaps New York's most beautiful skyscraper, the Irving Trust Co.

* * *

BROADWAY at this point is only 27 feet wide, thus accounting for the term "canyon" applied to those narrow passageways between the climbing towers.

Of special interest is the fact that Trinity Churchyard with its ancient tombs stand less than 100 feet from where old John Slidell carried on his thriving business in 1810. Alexander Hamilton, killed in a duel with Aaron Burr, is buried there, and so is Robert Fulton, credited by some authorities as the builder of the first steamboat.

* * *

THE Hamilton-Burr affair has significance here, for, as Burton J. Hendrick points out in his magnificent analysis of Jefferson Davis and the men who formed his cabinet, "Statesmen of the Lost Cause:"

"The artistic glory of New York from 1800 to 1820 was the old Park theater. Here Slidell was a frequent attendant, interested not only in the plays but in one of the most popular ladies of the cast. In this romance again the adventurous young man met opposition this time in the person of the celebrated Stephen Price, manager of the Park. One morning on the city's outskirts the two rivals met at pistol point in the most approved Hamilton-Aaron Burr manner; the theatrical manager was seriously wounded, and this, as well as his multitudinous debts, made desirable for Slidell a residence in some distant region."

Thus is was that a Broadway Yankee, with his duelling pistols and a backstage valentine among his souvenirs, fled to New Orleans where he took up the law, became a planter, and in due time claimed a Creole bride. It was from here, during the turbulent days of the infant sixties, that he made his entrance upon the stage of history.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Congress Disturbed By Criticism, Senate Votes to Annul Pension Act

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

CONGRESS was as grouchy as grandpa with the gout. The war was going badly in the Far East, brash U-boats were shelling Western Hemisphere soil, folks back home were taunting congressmen for voting themselves pensions.

Rep. Bender (R., Ohio) demanded that the entire U. S. military machine be revamped because the war effort was being hindered by "the sacred cows of military usage."

And Senator Vandenberg, complaining that General MacArthur "is the only symbol we have left of military efficiency," proposed that MacArthur be made supreme commander of the armed forces.

The biggest gripe of all came from Senator Tydings who called for admirals and generals who will "stand up" to President Roosevelt if they feel any grave errors are being committed. From that he went on to make the sweeping charge that the government had become "an overgrown monstrosity" with an "extravagant, wasteful bureaucracy" that was hampering the war effort.

To this President Roosevelt retorted that a lot of bright boys and glib guys were demanding that non-defense agencies of the government be pruned while refusing to specify just how it should be done. He added that such trimming, anyhow, was largely up to congress.

Embarrassed By Pensions.

One of the least graceful feats for any congressman to do is publicly to back down on an issue. Yet during the week members of both houses were backing down by the score on the pension issue. They were tumbling over themselves to rush out repealers. Anything to stop the jeering taxpayers.

One lawmaker lamented: "I'm in a worse fix now than I have been for six years—and that with the elections coming up in the fall." A Democratic leader in the house said the legislation "would have to be repealed before congress would dare tackle a new tax bill" because taxpayers would not "relish our taking pensions for ourselves" while being forced to pay stiffer taxes.

Late Thursday the senate voted, 75-5, to repeal the "pensions for congressmen" provision and the house was expected to follow suit quickly.

"Rumor Factory."

After German U-boats had shelled the Dutch oil center of the island of Aruba (where the largest oil refinery in the world was being guarded by U. S. soldiers) and had attacked at least seven oil tankers, new worries beset congress. (The subs were routed during a later appearance.)

Chairman Walsh of the senate naval committee said the coasts of the U. S. were "almost defenseless." Thereupon, the president pointed out that under certain conditions enemy ships could shell New York and bombers could raid Detroit.

But at the same time FDR charged that Washington had become the nation's main rumor factory. This remark apparently was inspired when newsmen mentioned reports that the full losses at Pearl Harbor had not been disclosed, 'reports which FDR labelled r-o-t.

Quotes

Senator Lucas (D-Ill.): "We must go on the theory that the war can be lost, and not sit back quietly and say 'well, it may be a long war, but eventually we will win'."

Senator Tydings (D-Md.): "This war cannot be won on the defense. Japan is inferior in manpower, in productivity, in planes, in weapons and in her navy. But she is on the offensive and she is winning thousands of miles from the Japanese Islands themselves."

At Home

Here's That Man Again!

Eastern autoists were startled, then annoyed, last summer when Petroleum Coordinator Ickes called on filling stations to close at night. They kidded him when the situation improved and he called off his emergency.

Now the autoists are at war. They've heard how U-boats have bagged perhaps a dozen oil tankers off the American coast. They can not buy new tires. Thus they responded more calmly when Ickes announced that again an oil emergency was at hand. He said the oil industry had recommended night and Sunday shutdowns for filling stations and even rationing if necessary.

Ever-Widening Draft.

America now has a 2,000,000-man army, is aiming at 3,600,000 by the end of this year, and may more than double that later on.

As the army expands, so does the pool from which it is drawn. The first two selective service registrations produced a total of 17,600,000 men. Early this week 9,000,000 more men were brought in. They were the 20-year-olds and men from 36 through 44.

Abroad

Churchill's Crisis.

Prime Minister Churchill, puffing his cigar furiously, received the news of the dash of the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau up the English Channel in the British admiralty's map room. For hours he paced back and forth before a huge map of the channel as reports came in.

One the same day the British forces on Singapore were clearly losing the battle for that bastion.

The two events together put Churchill in the worst spot he had been in politically since he became prime minister. He could not be sure even of his own job. The empire was demanding that political heads roll.

Churchill's action came Thursday when he announced cabinet changes which place a number of younger men in key positions in the British war effort.

Substitute Road.

Months ago the Chinese anticipated that their lifeline from Rangoon to Chungking (the Burma road) might be severed. They began work on a new road that will wind across the two-mile-high Himalayas.

Its outlet will be Calcutta, 600 miles west of Rangoon. A rail line runs up to Sadiya. But there the towering Himalayas begin abruptly. The new road is being built from Sadiya to a point 500 miles across the mountains. The terrain is much more formidable than that crossed by the Burma road.

About 120,000 Chinese coolies are said to be working on the gigantic new undertaking. Seven thousand already have been killed or dashed to death while at work in the rocky gorges. The road may be usable by the end of this year.

* * *

Japanese Press On.

Loss of Singapore opened a gate to the vast Indian ocean exposing the shores of India, Burma, Iran and Africa to the Japanese fleet.

It imperiled supply lines to embattled China and Russia.

It poised a new dagger at Java, heart of the Dutch Indies, and raised appreciably the threat to the sub-continent of Australia.

While Singapore was still crumbling, Japanese parachute troops landed near the rich oil center of Palembamg in southern Sumatra. The Dutch forces wiped out most of these, but the next day an armada of ships arrived. Palembamg soon fell, but not until after the Dutch had fired the oil fields. It was a $100,000,000 blaze.

The Japanese then turned to push their thrust toward the citadel island of Java, key to the Dutch achipelago, without even waiting to complete their investment of Sumatra.

Dionne vs. Dafoe.

Papa Oliva Dionne has never liked the fact that he has just barely been able to call the quints his own. Soon after their birth the government intervened. A board of guardians was named which took charge of the tykes, placed them on exhibit and even decided what they should eat.

Dionne, a French-Canadian small towner, has centered his resentment on kindly Dr. Allan Roy Defoe, the country doctor who attended the quints' birth back in 1934 and who was named physician and a guardian. Dionne haggled with Dr. Dafoe on what the quints should read, what language they should speak. (Dionne insisted on French.) Further he implied that Dafoe was profiteering from his daughters.

A truce was arranged in 1939 after Dafoe agreed to step down as guardian and remain only as physician. Last week he stepped down from the latter job also.

Corny's Calculations.

A school teacher in Piedmont, Calif., called Corny Warmerdam pole vaults in his spare time. Corny figures everything out scientifically. He has drawn up charts to show where he must grip the pole to clear any given height.

No human being had ever cleared 15 feet. Corny decided that the 15 foot mark was just a mental hazard so he proceeded—with the help of his charts—to clear it.

Then he set his sights at 16 feet. This week, though he had astounded the sports world, he left Boston depressed. He had been able to clear only 15 feet, 7¼ inches!

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 22.

SUNDAY'S horoscope although favoring the conventional affairs of the day, heightening the mystical, spiritual and deep consciousness, yet may be visited by sudden and devastating upheavals which may upset all plans and calculations. Progress may be impeded by the necessity to hearken to duty, to care for essential obligations and to retrench on funds and other resources.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which all progress and success depend upon the discreet, sagacious and well controlled conduct in times of upheaval, stress and unexpected situations of a devastating nature. Wild and tumultuous acts might prove disastrous, whereas shrewd, temperate, intuitive and cannily clever handling of untoward events should attract secret help from powerful if hidden sources.

A child born on this day should be well endowed with imagination, intuition, or other vague or mysterious forces.

For Monday, February 23.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather conflicting one, with much asurance of success, progress, adventure and gratification in both business and private affairs. In this, however, there may be opposition, antagonism or lack of support from superiors or employers. But travel, writings, finances, ambitious plans and projects are under excellent rule.

Those whose birthday it is, although possibly menaced by the want of co-operation or approval of some in high places, yet should have a very lively, eventful, prosperous and happy year.

A child born on this day should be particularly clever, versatile, cultured, with noble ideals and aspirations. It should have high social and public ambitions.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

DESPITE her regal poise, I saw that Olga's fingers trembled slightly when they picked up the picture that had accompanied Olina's fan letter, and I realized that something about the queer epistle was affecting her more than she was willing to admit.

She looked at it for a long minute, then turned her puzzled eyes on mine.

"How very queer!" she said. "There must be a hidden message in it, for otherwise there is no sense whatever in it."

"I'll tell you what we found out about it," I said, and forthwith showed her the reversed score of the notes from Loch Lomond, and sang the words for her, a most indifferent performance but effective, for she grasped its meaning at once.

"He is telling her that he will meet her in Scotland," she said, "or is Scotland camouflage for some other place?"

Madge Explains.

"I think it is," I said, "and as the score is reversed, Olina and I believe it means that he came by airplane—you see hovering over the Statue of Liberty—and she came by the low road, the steamship: but that he will be in 'Scotland,' whatever place he means by that, before her."

Her excitement was rising now. I could see it in the color which was coming into her cheeks and in the bright intentness of her eyes.

"Yes, that must be the meaning," she said. "Did-did Olina appear at all excited over it, or make any conjectures about it?"

"Not especially," I answered slowly, "but she dropped one or two little things which made me wonder if she might not have some idea which she was keeping to herself . . ."

The muscles of Olga's throat rippled again in a swallowing motion.

"Do you mind telling me about them?"

Olina's Odd Question.

"I already had planned to do that," I told her. "Olina asked me if I thought you might figure out a clue to the picture, and there was something—something odd—about the intonation investing her query. Then she asked me if I wished to show it to anyone else, and when I told her my husband, my father and Mary, she said, again with that odd intonation, that she imagined Mary might be interested in it, but that to show it to Noel would do neither Noel nor Mary any good."

"Ah!" Olga exclaimed, and I knew that she had read even more significance into Olina's words than I had done. It was a long second before she spoke again.

"Did you say there was something in the picture which you did not explain to Olina?" she asked.

Mentions "The Larches."

I picked up the picture and showed her where the ocean broke off abruptly, and how the right of the picture was given over to a house with a picket fence and gate in front of it.

"I know I am not mistaken in this?" I said. "That house represents The Larches—the house which those old retainers of yours rented for Olina when she was over here—and whoever drew the picture knew that gate."

Gate Post Top Awry.

I showed her the square top of the gate post slightly awry, and the apparent slip of the brush which I deduced meant the letters which used to be hidden in that hollow top.

"Whoever drew this knew The Larches well," I said. "I am convinced of that. And look at this, which I am sure neither Olina nor Redfield saw."

Then I traced for her the faint dotted line which led from the airplane down to the gate, ending in a smudge which might or might not be an arrow.

"I can't help thinking that the song really means 'I'll be at The Larches before you'."

Olina Excited.

"Of course it does," she said, and her excitement was patent now. "I wish I could tell you what I think it means, but I must not just now. It isn't my secret. But how clever you were to think this all out!"

"Olina did as much as I did," I told her truthfully. "But tell me, was I right in keeping that bit about the gate from Olina?"

"Oh yes, indeed," she said. "She must not know anything more about it than she does now, until I look into this further. And please do not tell her that I saw anything especial in it."

CHAPTER IX

Max took her to a place where the lights were dim gold—a place she would never forget. Whenever she heard its name in years to come it would always recall this night.

Potted palms, murals depicting the scenes on southern beaches, and the men in the orchestra in white, transported them to the tropics.

Max looked at her across the table. "If you think I spend my evenings in places like this, you're sadly mistaken. I've never been here before."

"Bob Kennedy said that you came on the ship at the Canal Zone when he met you. I asked him about you."

"I'd been in South America on a job that was chiefly all work and little play. Now I'm in the New York office."

She was afraid to ask, "Permanently?" Of course he was permanently in New York. Of course.

She did not know why it had not occurred to her before to ask, "Are you married? Have you ever been married?"

He answered slowly as though he were answering the question of an inquisitive child. "No. I was very nearly once, but that was a long time ago. She died."

"I'm sorry."

"But if she had lived, a man I know, slightly, sitting behind you, would not be thinking what a handsome couple we are that probably we've been lovers for a long time. We should have been. I'm very crazy about you, Judith. You know it, don't you? I want to give you what, heretofore, I've always taken. Let's dance so that I can put my arms around you."

* * *

No thoughts, only feelings mounting and receding, and the fear that was in love, the fear of loss, and the instinct to keep and possess. The songs they played that night became their songs never to be thrown into discard when newer ones replaced them. And dancing became not the mere keeping in step to music and idle chatter, but Max's embrace, the living, breathing closeness of him.

His smile was to make her mood lighter. "We're naturals, darling. Your head reaches my shoulder and you have the great gift of silence when silence is needed."

She looked up, smiling. "I believe he likes me."

Max laughed, low. "It's something like that that he's trying desperately to convey."

* * *

On Thursday evening the motif was Hawaiian and over Judith's blue frock was a blue lei and over Max's dark coat a coral-colored one. They had dined and danced, and now they sat, their hands joined over the table as blurred figures danced to soft music.

"I'd like you to meet some of my friends, Max."

"I'm sure they're very charming, darling, but I want to keep you all to myself. You don't object, do you?"

"I couldn't when you put it that way. Will we ever exhaust things to talk about?"

"How can we when we can always talk about — us? Stop frowning, I love that dear face eager and young. The trouble with most women, you know, is that they cannot live for the moment. With me you must, darling."

"You're not unstable."

"Simply a realist, and the stardust in your eyes frightens me. I'm not perfect. But this imperfect man loves you very dearly."

"A meteor across your sky . . ."

His fingers tightened around hers as she laughed. "You remember that!"

"I remember everything. And I've never talked so much to anyone before. You make me glib. You make me want to give you impressions and ideas that until now I kept to myself. But even so I can't tell you how I feel."

"Your hands tell me."

"I lived quite well without you, but now I know I wouldn't live at all without you." She smiled. "I date my life—B. M. and A. M. Before Max and after Max."

"I won't like it at all if you neglect your work. I'm enormously interested in it."

"I'll have to be famous and successful so you'll be proud of me."

* * *

And yet her work had become remote. The center of her existence, it had been pushed aside for Max to occupy the center. Her passion, it had become a pleasant chore, and Max had become her passion.

She said, "I didn't know that love was like this, Max. I thought it was sweeter, gentler."

"You didn't know that love is a harsh ecstasy."

"A harsh ecstasy?" Yes . . ."

He smiled. "My analytical darling."

"I've always taken things apart, looked at them and put them together again."

"But human beings are full of inconsistencies, remember. They squirm out of place, topple from their pedestals. They change . . ."

"Well never change," she thought, seeing him look away, his thick, fair lashes shielding the alert blue eyes that had narrowed because of the smoke.

Presently he stroked her hand gently. "I'm going to take you home now and you mustn't get any wrong ideas when I tell you I can't see you for a week."

"You treat me as if I were a child."

"You are, and the more I see of you and know you and love you, the more I realize I must be a brake for you. For all the arrogance you don't believe you possess, for all the adorable self-sufficiency you really do possess, you could be reckless. I'm up to my neck in things I've neglected to do because of you. But I'll miss you and think of you and ring you up every few days. And I love you."

* * *

The white flanks of the cruise ship moved alongside the same pier it had left two weeks ago and the same passengers who then had been eager to be at sea were now equally eager to be welcomed back by a vast crowd of welcoming faces.

Tim had brought Judith and Emily. But before they had arrived at the pier Tim, who liked any excuse to be festive, had bought flowers and they had stopped at Phyllis and Ames' apartment to open the windows and arrange the flowers so that the apartment with its new, unlived-in look would be more homelike.

"I've forgotten how Phyllis and Ames look," Tim said, grinning. He towered above the two slender girls.

"Phyllis has red hair. You can't miss a red head," Emily said. "I don't see Ames' father."

Judith, on tip-toe, peered over the bobbing heads, her attention divided. Was Max here to greet the "friend" he had seen off two weeks ago? Anxiously she looked for him as she tried also to pick out Phyllis and Ames from the faces along the deck. That you could love someone so much that he became the center of your existence without knowing his life apart from you seemed very odd indeed.

Tim had become like a member of the family. Gay, helpful, at home in the apartment, she had found him and Emily scrambling eggs in the tiny kitchen several times and he had been insistent that they all be his guests tonight. But Max went his exclusive way alone, wanting to share her, Judith, with no one. But she would not have him different. The day-by-day, informal, boy-and-girl relationship of Tim and Emily was not for Max and her. Because they were in love, must they share family and friends? No . . . She had asked for a man who was no ordinary man such as Tim or Ames and, yes, Stephen Larrabee were, and Max had come as though she had ordered him and the gods had delivered him.

"I see them!" Emily cried. "They're coming off now!"

Phyllis, in a green suit, looked radiant and lovely. There was a bridge of freckles across her small nose. Ames deep tan added to his good looks.

"The most marvelous time," Phyllis was saying to them a few minutes later. "The loveliest places . . . Wait'll we get our pictures developed."

"We'll have to get our baggage inspected, dear," Ames said.

"Inspected?" Phyllis asked vaguely. "Oh, yes, of course, darling. I'd forgotten. What a nuisance. What do they do?"

"I'll attend to it. You talk to Tim and Judith and Emily."

"Don't be long, dear. We're Tim's guests tonight. Isn't that sweet of him? I was hoping I wouldn't have to go straight to the kitchen after my honeymoon."

Ames seemed somewhat disappointed, Judith thought.

"But, Phyllis, I thought we were going to the apartment, dear."

"We are first, to leave our things, but there's nothing to eat in the place and Tim wants. . . ."

* * *

It was obvious, Judith thought, that Ames wished to go directly to his new home with his wife and remain for the evening and that while he seemed pleased that friends had met them he wished also, now that the greetings were over, they would all go. Two weeks of marriage had given him a solid, married look. Incredible that he should look older and soberer so soon. But to Ames marriage was not a romantic excursion, but a serious and enduring journey. Stable, conventional, his attitude toward Phyllis was that of the protective, stronger male.

He turned to Judith. "Have you seen Dad?"

"No, Ames, I haven't."

"Probably couldn't get away from the office. I'll get our things through and join you later."

When he left, Phyllis said, "You know, I'd forgotten all about Ames' father, I suppose . . . but never mind. There was the most wonderful party on the ship last night. We didn't get to bed until five. I wished we could have cruised for thirty days. You simply wallow in luxury and the food was superb."

Emily was smiling. "But you have your own kitchen now and I'm sure Ames had some socks that need darning."

"Don't tell me about it! I haven't the slightest idea how to begin."

How Emily would love a kitchen of her own and Tim's socks to darn! But Tim didn't know Emily was voicing her own desires.

* * *

After a long while Ames, warm and perspiring, joined them. On the street they parted, promising to meet later for cocktails and dinner. As Judith's eyes followed them to the taxi, she thought, "For Ames the honeymoon is over. But not for Phyllis. What will she do? What will she be when she discovers that it is over?"

And all at once she had an intense longing for Max.

In the car Tim took her hand and Emily's. "Two beautiful gals. What more could any man ask for? Ames is a swell person. He'll make your red-headed Phyllis a fine husband."

Judith wanted to ask, "But will Phyllis make him a good wife?"

When they were driving, Tim said, "You're very quiet, Judith."

Emily looked over her shoulder and smiled at her understandingly. "Our Judith doesn't bring work home from the office anymore, Tim. Now draw your own conclusions and don't tease her. I'm glad for her."

Judith thought, "I want Max."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

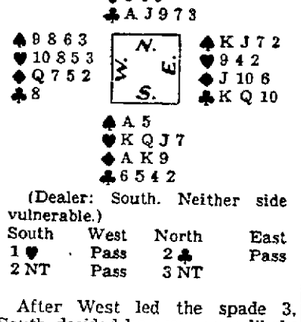
"The Authority on Authorities"

PLACE THE LEAD

In No Trump play especially, but also sometimes in suit play, it is important to make sure you do not allow the lead to be gained by the player who is in position to threaten some guarded honor. If his partner leads, he will have to lead up to it, making it a sure trick-taker, instead of through it, which may result in its being knocked off. The reason this is so important in No Trumps contracts is that, if you miss the play, the opponents may be able to run off an entire suit against you.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

After West led the spade 3, South decided he was more likely to hold the K than was his partner, so he called the Q from dummy and the K went on. South, just from force of habit more than anything else, decided to hold up and take the second spade, which he did when East led back the 2. There was thereafter no chance at all to make the contract.

With eight tricks in sight, he made a far-fetched try for a ninth by leading the club 2 and trying to finesse the J, hoping West had the K and Q. East, of course, won with the Q, cashed the spade J to drop the 10, and led the spade 7 to the 9. West returned a diamond to South, who then led a club, intending to try to drop the missing honors with the A, but when this failed he was through.

South's best play on the spade lead was the 10 from dummy. If that forced the K, then his contract would have been safe, with the highest two honors left, and his ninth trick built right there. As the cards lay, no matter which he played, East would cover and South must win, then see that West did not get the lead again. To the second trick, South should have played to lose a club to East. If the latter returned a spade, there would be the ninth trick set up. If he did not, South should have led another club, letting East win. Then, no matter what East did, South could make not only his 3 No Trumps, but an extra trick as well.

OBSERVE WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

Galion Congregations Join In Union Services Friday.

GALION — Nine Galion churches held the annual observance of World Day of Prayer at First Methodist church, Friday afternoon, with 140 present. The program theme, "I Am The Way" was carried out during the observance.

An organ prelude was played by Dorothy Plack, who also accompanied all group singing that was led by Mrs. J. V. Dye.

Mary Mather, president of the federation of missionary societies of the nine churches, presided for the short business session when the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. J. C. Zimmerman; vice president, Mrs. C. R. Bird; treasurer, Grace Weston; and secretary for the 14th consecutive year, Mrs. H. F. Schupp.

After the invocation given by Miss Mather, the program was presented. This included readings, silent and spoken prayers, and hymns. Women from the different churches took part in the presentation of various topics, and Mrs. R. R. Robertson, pastor of the host church.

Mansfield Beats Massillon 46-40 In Rough Battle

Sport Podge by REX HESS

George Satterlee, president of the Mansfield Braves, is back in town after spending two weeks in the cold and snow of upper New York state.

But the return to this but very slightly warmer clime hasn't thawed him out to the point of making a definite yes or no announcement on whether the Braves will play in the Ohio State baseball league this coming summer.

George hastens to explain, however, "It's out of my hands."

* * *

"The decision on whether Mansfield will be in the league rests now on league President Joe Donnelly, and depends on what success Donnelly has had in interesting a major league club as backer of the Braves," Satterlee said.

"Joe was confident he could arrange such backing, and since he voted a proxy for the Braves, without my knowledge, at the recent league meeting, he may have something up his sleeve.

* * *

"I expect Donnelly to visit Mansfield today or tomorrow, and maybe we'll know the answer then."

* * *

Satterlee made it clear that he did not expect to operate the Braves this summer, either by himself or with somebody.

Whoever takes over the franchise can prepare to lay out $1,100 right off the bat, including $600 forfeit to the league to insure payrolls, $300 deposit with the power company for lighting, at least $100 to put the diamond in shape, and around $100 for incidental expenses.

Added to that would be ball park rental, lighting equipment rental, purchase of a new bus if one can be obtained, and front office expense.

* * *

These are expenses that would have to be met before the first ball player dons his suit and takes his first practice cut at the onion.

Already burdened with an oversupply of red ink from last year, it's no wonder present owners of the Braves aren't enthusiastic over the coming campaign.

* * *

Meanwhile I don't blame Mansfield fans who are somewhat confused over the status of baseball here. One day we play, the next we don't, the next day maybe. I'm a bit bewildered myself.

Bob Winbigler Paces Tygers With 24 Points

Preliminary Game Called Tie When Scorekeeper Misses Bucket

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sports Editor

MANSFIELD 46, MASSILLON 40.

You can say that again:

MANSFIELD 46, MASSILLON 40.

And a gym-jamming crowd of 1,400 fans went nuts last night at Senior high school. "Insane" is too polite a word. The crowd didn't go just politely insane. It went nuts.

It had a right to go that way. It had just seen the wildest, roughest, fastest, most exciting basketball game of the home season. It had just seen the Tygers take the Tigers. It had just seen:

MANSFIELD 46, MASSILLON 40.

It was the 14th victory in 19 starts for Coach Vern Hoffman's hoopsters.

Truth to tell, the crowd had been nuts all through the night, starting with an official 24 to 24 tie game in the preliminary battle between the reserve teams of the two rival schools. By rights and by actual score, the Tygers won that prelim also, 26 to 24, on a last-quarter bucket by Bobby Baker that never got in the scorebook.

* * *

The rough gridiron tactics of that preliminary game, and the argument that followed over who won the game, set the crowd in just the right mood for the big battle.

* * *

But what really set the crowd nuts was the sensational play of big Bob Winbigler, who paced the Tygers with 24 points on 11 buckets and a pair of free tosses, and boosted Mansfield high's new all-season individual scoring record to 246 points.

Windy wasn't just hot. He fought for his points in as great an exhibition of inspired basketball as has ever been seen on Mansfield's or any other floor. Massillon not only couldn't stop him, they couldn't catch him. And some of the time they couldn't even find him, so fast he moved around.

And the rest of the Tygers caught fire with him. Joe Romano and Paul Dietzel got in there and battled as Mansfield cage fans have never seen them battle before, and each was rewarded with nine points. Joe Altamonte had the Tigers crazy with his ball handling under the defensive bucket, and little Dean Hahn was pushing the Tigers around as though he had never heard of Massillon's football reputation.

* * *

Loose officiating turned both games into riots or rough action and according to the rule book, both teams got away with murder. Officials Gross and Rupp apparently were murder mystery fans. Every now and then they set to work to solve some particularly dastardly crime. All of which added to the gaiety of the occasion and the excitement of the battle.

* * *

Mansfield started out on a hot streak, sparked by Joe Romano's long shots, that gave the Tygers an early 13-6 lead, but the Tigers cut that down to 13-11 at the quarter.

Then Buttermore started slipping away for sucker shots in the second period and Massillon went out in front 23 to 19 at the half.

That's where Winbigler took charge of the game. He tallied six straight points early in the third period to boost Mansfield into a 29-27 lead, and the Tygers went on from there to score 11 points while holding Massillon scoreless. Score at the end of the third period was 34-28 in favor of Mansfield.

Each team scored 12 points in the closing stanza.

The prelim nearly ended in a small riot when the Mansfield scorekeeper found his book showed the two teams tied at 24 to 24, after the game was long over and everyone thought Mansfield had won 26-24.

* * *

After a long argument, during which the scorebook mysteriously disappeared, it was decided to call it a tie. And that's the way it stands, officially. The scorekeeper had missed one of two buckets tallied in the last period by Baker.

* * *

DeMando scored under the basket. Dietzel got a free point. DeMando tallied on a free shot. Winbigler sank a one-handed push shot from the corner. Romano connected on a long shot from the side. Buttermore made the second of two free tosses. Romano uncorked a short one-hander. Buttermore scored under the hoop. Winbigler hooped a one-hander from the side. Dietzel scored on the pivot and Massillon took time out with Mansfield leading 11-6 with four minutes and 25 second of the quarter gone.

Romano sank a long shot. Williams got a free point. McDade tallied under the hoop. Dietzel missed a free toss. Buttermore sneaked away for a sucker shot. Romano and Buttermore each missed a free shot on a double foul and it was Mansfield 15, Massillon 11 at the quarter.

* * *

Harrison tied the score with a one-hander from the circle. Winbigler grabbed a loose ball for a sucker shot. Buttermore caged a long shot from center court, and then hooped another long one from the side to make it 17-15 for Massillon. McDade and Dietzel matched free points. Dietzel tied it up at 18-18 with a follow shot. Buttermore got a free point. Buttermore missed another free toss. Romano made the second of a pair of free shots, and Winbigler missed from the free line. Buttermore sank a one-hander from the side. DeMando missed a free toss which Bray followed in for two points. Mansfield 19, Massillon 23 at the half.

DeMando got a follow shot. Winbigler sank a one-hander from the corner and Hahn looped a left-handed shot from the side. Harrison got a sucker shot. Winbigler scored six points in a row on a follow shot, a one-hander from the circle and a sucker shot to put Mansfield ahead 29-27.

Williams fouled out and was replaced by Bray, and on the play, Dietzel scored a free point. McDade missed a free shot. Winbigler batted in a follow shot. Altamonte and DeMando missed free shots. Dietzel got a follow shot and then missed a free toss. Mansfield had scored 11 points while blanking the Tigers. Weisgarber got a free point. Mansfield 34, Massillon 28 at the third quarter.

* * *

Romano sank a long shot. Harrison tallied under the hoop. Hahn caged a one-hander from the circle. Buttermore made good on a pair of free tosses. DeMando missed a free shot. McDade got a one-hander from the circle and with the score 38-34 in favor of Mansfield and four minutes to go, the Tygers took time out.

* * *

Winbigler got a one-hander from the circle and then made the first of a pair of free tosses. Dietzel missed a free shot. Romano fouled out with two minutes, 25 seconds left to play, being replaced by Robinson. Buttermore missed the free shot. Robinson missed a free toss. Harrison scored from the side. Winbigler tallied five straight points on a one-hander from the corner, a sucker shot on a fast break, and on a free toss. DeMando got a follow shot. Hahn and DeMando missed free tosses, and McDade closed the scoring with a sucker shot. Mansfield 46, Massillon 40.

Red squirrels have been known to use snow burrows in obtaining food covered by snow, and even in traveling from tree to tree.

Inscription rock, on the south shore of Kelly's Island, is a flat-topped limestone boulder 32 by 21 feet across, rising ten feet above the beach. When discovered in 1833 it was covered with pictograph writings, the effigies of the larger human figures being eight feet long. While wind and weather have almost obliterated the markings, a replica may be seen at the island museum.

In Ohio it is quite likely that Old Man Winter is a worse foe to wildlife than the predators, disease and open seasons combined. Severe winter blizzards, snow and ice bound conditions take an extreme toll of birds and wildlife. The many sportsmen, school groups, 4-H Clubs and others are a great aid to conservation, through their unselfish efforts in winter feeding programs.

If dull skates have been "cramping your style," bring them in to Yuncker's and have them quickly and expertly sharpened, at small cost. A special machine imparts a perfect hollow-ground edge, and they'll be like new again. Or, you can buy new shoe skates at Yuncker's, for as little as $3.75.

The prolonged, angry hiss of the American pine snake or bull snake, can be heard 50 feet away. This ill-natured reptile strikes viciously at the slightest provocation, but fortunately is not poisonous.

Did you know that the home ranges of cottontail rabbits are usually very small? Many investigators have found that rabbits spend their lives on areas less than 10 acres in extent.

MODEST STOCK ADVANCE MADE BY FAVORITES

Most Leaders Lack Rising Power on Hesitant Trade Session.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Scattered rails and a few favorites in other departments negotiated modest stock market advances today but many leaders displayed a lack of rising vigor.

Word that American bombers had successfully blasted Japanese warships in the southwest Pacific cheered bullish forces but the forthcoming lengthy holiday—major markets will recess Monday for Washington's birthday—kept many potential bidders in the do-nothing ranks.

The list got off to a hesitant start and, with dealings exceptionally sluggish, trends were a shade mixed near the final hour.

Among stocks Union Pacific was up better than a point. Lesser gainers included Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Southern Railway, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Chrysler and Kennecott

Backward were Standard Oil (N.J.), Texas Co., General Motors, Bethlehem, Sears Roebuck, Du-Pont, Dow Chemical and J. I. Case.

Boardrooms noted the stock exchange survey which disclosed the grand total of shareholders in companies whose stock is listed on the exchange now is the largest on record. The 50 listed corporations from which this aggregate was compiled reported an approximate increase of 50,000 stock owners in the past year. Holders of common shares in these concerns currently were placed at 3,710,000, a 79 per cent expansion over 1929.

Sugar Robinson Gives Maxie Lump

NEW YORK —(AP)— They call him "sugar," so Ray Robinson rationed one lump—on the head—to Maxie Berger of Montreal in their welterweight fight at Madison Square Garden last night.

* * *

Like a pocket edition of Joe Louis, the skinny Harlem hammerer, weighing 144, stopped Berger, 145½, in one minute and 43 seconds of the second stanza of their scheduled 12-rounder, dropping him twice before Referee Frankie Fullam ordered hostilities to cease.

* * *

For Robinson, who never has known defeat, it was the 28th straight triumph and the 22nd knockout since he turned professional less than two years ago after winning 89 fights as an amateur.

His performance earned him a shot at Red Cochrane's welterweight title, but there was talk that he might be matched with Marty Servo, the Schenectady coast guardsman.

Plymouth Shades Union In Overtime

UNION—In an overtime game last night Plymouth held its tie with Madison for second honors in the Richland county league cage race by shading Union, 43-41.

Bill Reed was the boy of the hour for the Tigers, pouring in 25 points and both the tieing and winning buckets.

Plymouth led 11-7 at the quarter, 25-15 at the half, trailed 28-35 at the third quarter and tied the match up 41 all at the end of the game.

Plymouth won the reserve tilt, 21-13.

WESTINGHOUSE REVEALS SCOPE OF WAR EFFORT

Tells Mansfield What It Can Expect In Way of Employment Toward End of Year.

Because they couldn't call in the entire city to hear the story, Westinghouse officials invited 65 of the city's representative citizens—industrialists, business and professional men, labor leaders, heads of civic and business organizations, city and county officials.

They talked frankly. They told of the problems they've had, and are facing daily. They presented exhibits showing the complete and precise nature of their war work. They took the citizens group through those parts of the plant where war work will be done.

Although strict censorship governs release of details and figures on actual production progress on war orders, the method used by the Mansfield Westinghouse officials must have been okay with the government, for there were army representatives present. And it is from the army and navy that Westinghouse has received its big orders—those for binoculars and armor-piercing shells.

B. W. Clark, vice president in charge of the Westinghouse Merchandising Division, was principal speaker. He explained why it's impossible to stop production of refrigerators one day and start making war goods the next.

When the company obtained its contract for army binoculars, a whole new plant was needed. The order was obtained last August, and production will start next month. Next order obtained was for 37 millimeter armor-piercing shot, and production on these will start in a few days, despite the fact that again a whole new plant was required.

Clark said that between May 1941 and January, 1942, the company studied 200 projects, bid on 98, and obtained nine.

Just how successful Westinghouse in Mansfield has been in speeding the conversion to war goods was revealed in this statement by Clark:

"In September our war production will be going full tilt. By the last of December, Westinghouse in Mansfield will have shipped $20,000,000 and more, of war products, all highly technical, all bearing practically no resemblance to our regular products, all requiring new facilities, construction, engineering training."

Clark traced the material shortages that have affected the appliance industry with growing force since January, 1941, and the curtailments that have been ordered by the government. First of these was the order cutting refrigerator production by 55 per cent—an order which came when the plant was producing an all-time high total of appliances.

Limiting orders followed on vacuum cleaners, laundry equipment, and electric ranges Now refrigerator production has been ordered stopped April 30, a similar order is expected on ranges. Clark said

C. L Van Derau, works manager, served as toastmaster and welcomed the guests, who assembled at the company auditorium for a luncheon which preceded the talks and plant tour.

Van Derau pointed to the importance of metals in this war with the statement that the first World war required 90 pounds of metal per soldier, while the new World war requires 4,900 pounds. While the Westinghouse plant here normally spends $250,000 per year for rehabilitating and replacing equipment, it now is in the process of spending $2,700,000 to convert its facilities for war production, Van Derau said.

Another theme—the great importance of winning the peace as well as the war, was introduced by another speaker F R Kohnstamm, sales manager

He pointed to the part electrical appliances have played in building American standards of living. Mansfield Westinghouse has built 20,000,000 such appliances during its 24 years' growth from a plant with 125 employes and an annual payroll of $125,000, to an employe roll of 5,000 and a payroll of more than $9,500,000 in 1941.

Kohnstamm told what the sales department is doing

"Instead of promoting products in our advertising, we will provide helpful ideas on care and use of electrical appliances We are continuing our research to improve present appliances and reduce their cost.

"Most of these developments will stay on the shelf until the peace comes. And when it does, we expect to emerge stronger and a more potent force than ever before."

J. H. Ashbaugh, manager of manufacturing and engineering, gave the group a picture of the high precision required in production of war goods.

The engineering department actually has a shelf, Ashbaugh said, on which it is placing its items developed for the future. The engineers are trying to reduce cost and improve products, and at the same time to develop new products which the company does not now manufacture.

Westinghouse is spending $250-000 for training of workers for their new tasks, Ashbaugh reported.

Final speaker was Sidney Earhart, president of Local 711, United Electrical and Radio Workers.

He pointed to the job being done by management and supervision, and said that the union local, too, is giving 100 per cent cooperation to the war effort of the Mansfield plant and the effort to return furloughed workers to their jobs.

"Labor has but one thing in mind," Earhart said. "That is a quick completion of this war, and an everlasting peace."

Twelve other members of the local were present, as were heads of the Mansfield Steel Workers' and Rubber Workers' unions

Interest of the group at the Westinghouse meeting, indicative of the city's interest in the company's plant in Mansfield, was shown by the fact that of the 65 invited, all but two were present. One of them was ill, the other out of the city, and both sent representatives.

ginning to pile up on wharves and that the long haul to the Pacific front by slow convoys has retarded deliveries.

A new menace to the American-British supply routes to Russia was seen in roundabout press reports to London that a powerful German raiding squadron was steaming northward along the Norwegian coast. The squadron was said to consist of the battleship Tirpitz, the pocket battleship Admiral Scheer and the cruiser Admiral Hipper.

While congress concentrated on production and shipping, the president empowered the army to remove "any or all persons" from designated military areas, a step aimed primarily at the Japanese problem on the west coast.

Attorney General Biddle said it was not intended that American citizens other than those of Japanese descent would be affected, but pointed out it gave the army power to act against anyone, anywhere in the United States.

be subject to whatever restrictions the secretary of war or the appropriate military commander may impose in his discretion."

Both presidential secretary Stephen T. Early and Biddle emphatically denied that the move was application of "martial law."

Biddle explained that martial law means the abolition of civil courts and civil authority, but that under the executive order, persons subject to removal could go into court to seek a writ of habeas corpus—a legal decision as to whether he was being subjected to illegal removal.

The attorney general added, however, that he did not think the courts of the land would "go behind the military regulation."

CREW RECOVERS AFTER RESCUE

Captain of Brazilian Ship Says Pocket-Size Sub Shelled Vessel.

(By International News Service)

NORFOLK, Va. — The captain and 45 members of the crew of the Brazilian merchantman Olinda, which was torpedoed and sunk off the Atlantic coast last Wednesday by a "pocket-size" Nazi U-boat today were recovering from their harrowing experiences, which included a visit by the ship's master to the midget submarine.

The crew members were brought ashore last night after their rescue at sea and 18 of the men were taken to Naval hospital for treatment for exposure.

Capt. Jacob Bellemond, of Rio de Janeiro, said that the small sub opened fire while about two miles away and he ordered all hands into life boats. The sub repeatedly shelled the 5,000-ton boat as it approached and then sent a torpedo into it. The sub pulled alongside two life boats after the Olinda went down and took Capt. Bellemond and another man into the U-boat, where the Nazi captain questioned them regarding the boat and its destination."

Sinesio Catarino da Dilva, of Bahai, Brazil, an engineer, said the U-boat "was one of the smallest submarines I have ever seen"

"She was real pocket-size and had a 5 or 6 inch gun on deck, and three machine guns on the conning tower," he said.

The Olinda was the second Brazilian ship to be sunk off the Atlantic coast in a week. The cargo ship Buarque was sunk last Sunday.

TILLIE THE TOILER

SMACK!
DAVE, WE WERE ONLY REHEARSING FOR A PLAY
I DON'T DOUBT YOUR WORD, BUT PLEASE DROP OUT OF THE CAST
BUT IT'S A USO PLAY! IT'S TO KEEP UP THE SOLDIERS MORALE - YOU WOULDN'T WANT YOUR COMRADES TO HAVE LOW MORALE
WOULD YOU?
ER, NO-
-BUT I DON'T WANT TO HAVE LOW MORALE, MYSELF, AND SEEING THAT MUGG KISS YOU, ISN'T BOOSTING MINE ANY DAVE!
RUSS COLSTOVER
SEE! THE SCRIPT CALLS FOR BASCOM TO GIVE ME AN ARDENT KISS AT THIS POINT
AND HOW MANY TIMES HAVE YOU TWO REHEARSED THIS SCENE?
OH, PERHAPS A DOZEN
HMM-AND HOW MANY TIMES HAVE YOU REHEARSED THIS SCENE WHICH CALLS FOR A COLD, MATTER-OF-FACT KISS?
OH YOU'RE ALTOGETHER TOO INQUISITIVE
TILLIE
LET ME SEE-WE DID THAT SCENE TWICE - AND THE FIRST TIME HE FORGOT TO BE COLD ABOUT IT - GEE
RUSS COLSTOVER
OH, BUBBLES, DAVE THINKS BASCOM IS IN LOVE WITH ME - I GUESS MAC AND WALLY THINK SO TOO
WELL, ISN'T HE?
I DON'T THINK SO - IT'S JUST THAT OUR USO PLAY CALLS FOR LOVE SCENES
WELL, TEST HIM - SAY YOU'RE DROPPING OUT OF THE CAST - THEN SEE HOW HE REACTS
2 18
OH, BASCOM, OUR REHEARSING THOSE LOVE SCENES HAS MADE PRIVATE PERRY HORRIBLY JEALOUS SO-INDEED!
WELL, IF YOU WISH TO MAKE HIM MORE SO, I SHALL, AS YOUR SERVANT, BE GLAD TO ASSIST YOU
MERCY! DOES THAT MEAN HE WANTS MORE LOVE SCENES OR IS HE TRYING TO MARRY ME DAVE!
RUSS COLSTOVER
WELL, IF THIS BASCOM ISN'T IN LOVE WITH YOU, HE'S A TRIFLER - HE'S JUST ACTING IN THAT PLAY, SO HE CAN HUG AND KISS YOU
MUMSY! - OH THERE'S THE DOOR-BELL
RING A LING
MISS JONES AS YOU SAY OUR ACTING IN THOSE LOVE SCENES IS DISTURBING YOUR BOY FRIEND, OR BOY FRIENDS
YOU'RE RIGHT ABOUT THAT
SO TO SAVE YOU EMBARRASSMENT I'VE PERSUADED THE COACH TO LET ME PLAY THE PART OF AN AGED EX-SOLDIER
MAYBE THAT'S FOR THE BEST
NOW, WE WUZ RIGHT AT THE FOOT OF SAN JUAN HILL WHEN WE WENT INTO ACTION
BASCOM, YOU'RE MARVELOUS
HMM - DO HIS EYES LIGHT UP WHEN SHE CALLS HIM MARVELOUS
RUSS COLSTOVER
BASCOM IS IN THE NEXT OFFICE - I'LL GREET DAVE AFFECTIONATELY AND SEE IF BASCOM WILL BE JEALOUS
OH DAVE I'M SO GLAD YOU CAME OVER, I'VE MISSED YOU
WELL IT'S ONLY BEEN TWO DAYS BUT I'VE MISSED YOU
DAVE YOU'VE BEEN AWFULLY SWEET
TILLIE, I'VE GOT TO ASK YOU SOMETHING
TILLIE, WILL YOU MARRY ME AT ONCE?
RUSS COLSTOVER
TILLIE, LET'S GET MARRIED AT ONCE I MIGHT BE SENT OVER-SEAS BEFORE LONG
DAVE I CAN'T ANSWER SUCH AN IMPORTANT QUESTION ALL OF A SUDDEN I'LL HAVE TO THINK IT OVER - GOOD BYE NOW
I WONDER WHERE BASCOM WENT? I WANTED TO SEE IF HEARING DAVE'S PROPOSAL MADE HIM JEALOUS
OH THERE YOU ARE
EXCUSE ME FOR RUNNING AWAY - I COULD TELL BY PRIVATE PERRY'S MANNER THAT-
-HE HAD SOME PERSONAL MATTER TO DISCUSS - AS A GOOD SERVANT I DIDN'T CARE TO HEAR

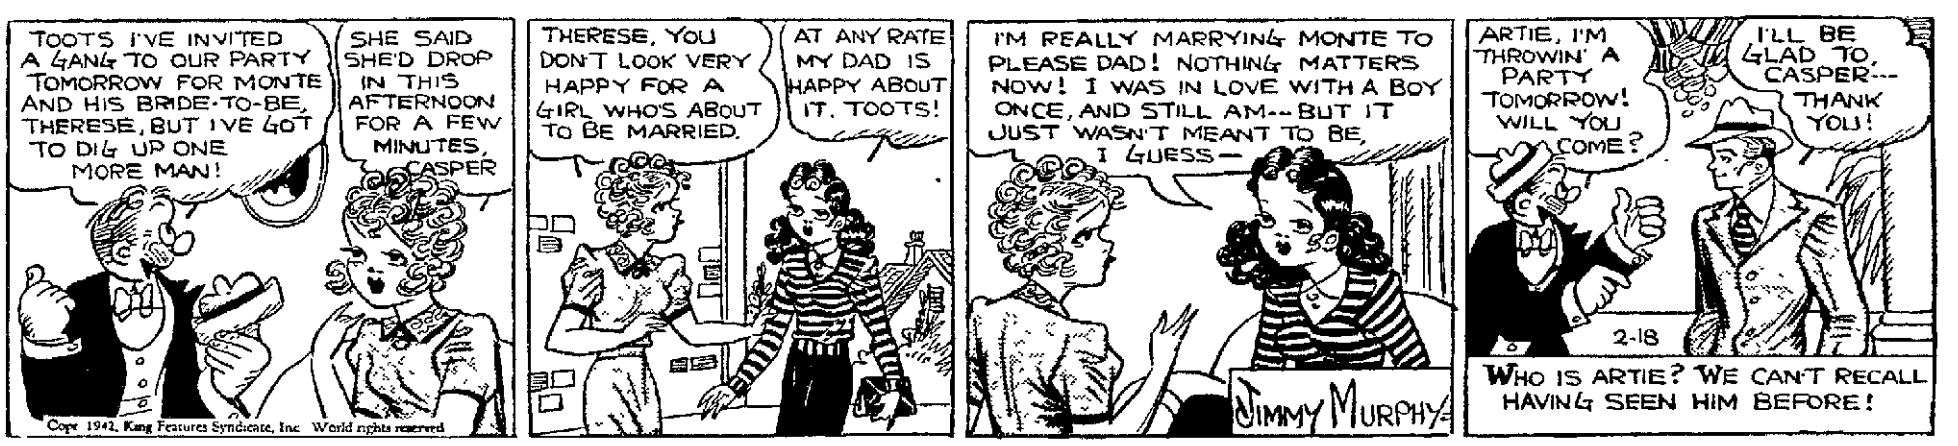
I'D LOVE TO, BUT I HAVE AN IMPORTANT MEETING THAT NIGHT, CASPER!
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
IT WILL BE A RELIEF WHEN THE WEDDING IS OVER! AS I TOLD YOU MY DAUGHTER MIGHT HAVE MARRIED THAT PENNILESS COLLEGE CHAP YEARS AGO, IF I HADN'T TACTFULLY BUSTED THEM UP.
I RESORTED TO UNDER-HANDED WORK TO SEPARATE THEM, AND EVER SINCE I'VE LIVED IN FEAR THAT THEY MIGHT ACCIDENTALLY MEET AGAIN AND START THEIR ROMANCE ANEW!
JIMMY MURPHY
THAT'S WHY I'M ALLOWING NO PUBLICITY ABOUT HER WEDDING FOR HIM TO READ! IF I CAN KEEP HIM OUT OF THE PICTURE UNTIL AFTER SHE MARRIES MONTE, THEN IT WILL BE TOO LATE. CASPER, IT'S BEEN A PROBLEM! I FEAR THERESE STILL LOVES THE BLIGHTER!



TOOTS I'VE INVITED A GANG TO OUR PARTY TOMORROW FOR MONTE AND HIS BRIDE-TO-BE, THERESE, BUT I'VE GOT TO DIG UP ONE MORE MAN!
SHE SAID SHE'D DROP IN THIS AFTERNOON FOR A FEW MINUTES, CASPER

JIMMY MURPHY

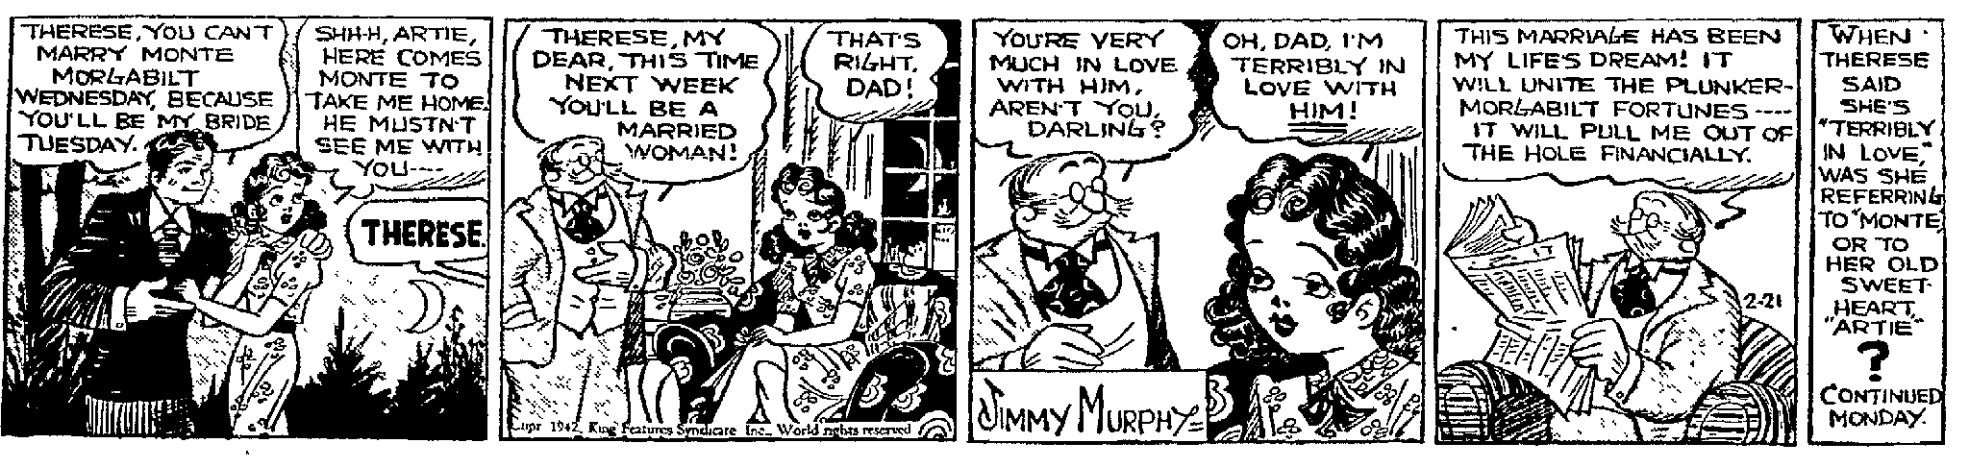
CASPER, WHERE'D MY FIANCEE GO TO?
SHE'S AROUND HERE SOME PLACE, MONTE
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
OF ALL THE CO-INCIDENCES! IT JUST DAWNED ON ME! THAT GUY "ARTIE," I INVITED HERE IS THERESE'S OLD FLAME--- THE GUY SHE SECRETLY LOVES!
THERESE, THE SUMMER YOUR DAD TOOK YOU AWAY FOUR YEARS AGO--WHY DIDN'T YOU EVER WRITE TO ME?
I WROTE YOU EVERY DAY, BUT YOU NEVER ANSWERED MY LETTERS, ARTIE.
JIMMY MURPHY
2-20
WHY, I WROTE YOU EVERY DAY AND NEVER RECEIVED A SINGLE REPLY! BUT NOW THAT I'VE FOUND YOU, I'LL NEVER LET YOU GO AGAIN.
IT'S TOO LATE NOW, ARTIE.. I'M TO MARRY MONTE MORGABILT, SON OF THE COPPER KING, NEXT WEDNESDAY



THERESE, YOU CAN'T MARRY MONTE MORGABILT WEDNESDAY, BECAUSE YOU'LL BE MY BRIDE TUESDAY.
SHH-H, ARTIE, HERE COMES MONTE TO TAKE ME HOME. HE MUSTN'T SEE ME WITH YOU--- THERESE.
THERESE, MY DEAR, THIS TIME NEXT WEEK YOU'LL BE A MARRIED WOMAN!
THAT'S RIGHT, DAD!
Copr. 1942, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.
YOU'RE VERY MUCH IN LOVE WITH HIM, AREN'T YOU, DARLING?
OH, DAD, I'M TERRIBLY IN LOVE WITH HIM!
JIMMY MURPHY
THIS MARRIAGE HAS BEEN MY LIFE'S DREAM! IT WILL UNITE THE PLUNKER-MORGABILT FORTUNES---- IT WILL PULL ME OUT OF THE HOLE FINANCIALLY.
2-21
WHEN THERESE SAID SHE'S "TERRIBLY IN LOVE," WAS SHE REFERRING TO "MONTE" OR TO HER OLD SWEET HEART, "ARTIE"

SECRET AGENT X-9

GASPING AND CHOKING FROM TEAR GAS, THE PASSENGERS ABOARD THE HAWAII CLIPPER STUMBLE ABOUT THE AISLE ....
MEANWHILE, THE TWO NAZIS PREPARE TO SEIZE CONTROL OF THE BIG PLANE.....
INTO THIS BAGGAGE COMPARTMENT, SWINE! YOU ARE PRISONERS OF WAR!
HEIL, HITLER!
ONLY FOR THE FUEHRER WOULD I DON THE GARB OF A WOMAN!
WE SHALL FLY THIS PLANE TO OUR FRIENDS IN THE EAST.. WAIT! SOMEONE IS AT THE DOOR!
CONGRATULATIONS! YOUR CAPTURE OF THIS PLANE WAS BRILLIANT! THE FOREIGN OFFICE SHALL KNOW OF YOUR DARING EXPLOIT!
ACH! NEVER HAVE I SEEN A JOB MORE EXPERTLY DONE! THE PLANE IS OURS — AND ALL ACCORDING TO PLAN!
THE DOLL, FILLED WITH TEAR GAS, TO PANIC THE PASSENGERS — THE NURSE'S UNIFORM TO ALLAY SUSPICION — PERFECT!
X-9 IS SURE LATHERING THESE NAZIS WITH SOFT SOAP.. HOPE HE GETS AWAY WITH IT!
OF COURSE, IT WAS WELL MANEUVERED.. ALL GERMAN STRATEGY IS OF THE SAME SUPERB PATTERN! BUT WHO ARE YOU?
A NATURAL ENOUGH QUESTION.
SURELY, YOU DID NOT THINK THE FOREIGN OFFICE WOULD TRUST THIS COUP DE MAIN TO TWO MEN? ADMIRAL VON R. ASSIGNED US TO BACK YOU UP ON THIS VENTURE!
AH— SO?
DO YOU CREDIT THE STORY TOLD US BY THESE TWO MEN? — THAT THEY WERE SENT BY ADMIRAL VON R. TO SEE THAT WE DID NOT FAIL IN THE CAPTURE OF THIS PLANE?
WELL— SUCH HAS BEEN THE FUEHRER'S PATTERN IN THE PAST...
THEY'RE TALKIN' US OVER, X-9!
WE MIGHT GET AWAY WITH IT.. SH-H--HERE HE COMES!
YOU SAY YOU ARE SECRET AGENT ECKSNEIN? HM-M... I MUST AGREE IT IS NOT AN AMERICAN NAME....
IT'S AS GERMAN AS SAUERKRAUT! NOW I SUGGEST WE DOUSE ALL BUT NAVIGATION LIGHTS...
... WE HAVE BROKEN RADIO CONTACT WITH HAWAII... IF THEY SEND PLANES TO LOCATE US, WE MAY NOT REACH OUR FRIENDS OF THE RISING SUN!
GOOD! NOW YOU DO SOUND LIKE ONE OF US, HERR ECKSNEIN!
WELL, HERR ECKSNEIN, WE SHALL SOON BE AMONG FRIENDS! WE ARE NEARING OUR EASTERN ALLIES!
QUAINT PEOPLE, THE JAPS....
...SUCH CEREMONIOUS FOLK— ALWAYS DROPPING IN ON THEIR FRIENDS, UNANNOUNCED, AND LEAVING THEIR CALLING CARDS — LITTLE GADGETS THAT GO BOOM!
GREAT SENSE OF HONOR, TOO! THEY BOW AND CURTSY, THE WHILE THEY CRAM THEIR IDEA OF CULTURE AND PROSPERITY DOWN THE THROATS OF THEIR NEIGHBORS!
HERR ECKSNEIN!
... ARE YOU NOT BEING SARCASTIC?
JUST REALISTIC! SURELY, YOU KNOW THE FUEHRER HAS NO LOVE FOR THE NIPPONESE! DO NOT FORGET THAT WE CALLED RUSSIA OUR FRIEND.. UNTIL WE JUMPED AT HER THROAT!
I AM TROUBLED ABOUT THIS HERR ECKSNEIN... HE CLAIMS TO BE A MEMBER OF OUR NAVAL INTELLIGENCE OPERATING IN FAR EASTERN WATERS...
...YET A FEW MINUTES AGO, HE MADE CAUSTIC REFERENCES TO OUR EASTERN ALLIES... IS THAT NOT SUSPICIOUS?
NOT AT ALL!
ONE MIGHT WELL BE AWARE OF THE WEAKNESS OF OUR PACT BROTHERS — AS FOR EXAMPLE, OUR FAT FRIEND, WHOSE AFRICAN EMPIRE WE ARE TRYING TO DEFEND!
HERR ECKSNEIN ONLY REFLECTS THE FUEHRER'S STRATEGY.. WE ARE THE MASTER RACE! THE SOLE PURPOSE OF OUR ALLIES IS TO HELP US TO VICTORY!
HERR ECKSNEIN! WE ARE CONVINCED THAT YOU AND YOUR COLLEAGUE ARE AS ONE WITH US!
WE SHALL CELEBRATE OUR VICTORY WHEN WE REACH OUR EASTERN ALLIES IN THIS PRIZE OF WAR!
SHAKING HANDS IS AN OUTWORN DEMOCRATIC TRADITION — A SIGN OF WEAKNESS! LET US SALUTE OUR DEAR FUEHRER!
HEIL HIT—
YOU SAID A MOUTHFUL!
KEEP HEILING WITH BOTH HANDS, BOYS! IT'S TWICE AS PATRIOTIC!
NICE WORK, BILL! I'LL TAKE OVER THE CONTROLS!

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

SPLENDID WORK, ANNIE—SPLENDID! YOU HAVE A NATURAL GIFT FOR PLANTING
GEE, MR. OLIVER—I DON'T THINK GROWIN' THINGS IS WORK—IT'S LIKE PLAYIN' A SWELL GAME AN' HAVIN' LOTSA FUN
YOU ARE RIGHT, CHILD—IF WE LOVE OUR WORK, WE THINK OF IT AS PLEASURE, NOT WORK
GLORYOSKY—I'D SOONER GROW THINGS THAN DO ANYTHIN' ELSE—
YOU KNOW, THE TWO HOURS FOR PLAYTIME WE HAVE EVERYDAY—IF I HAD A TINY, LITTLE PIECE OF GROUND I'D SPEND MY TWO HOURS PRETENDIN' I OWNED A BIG FARM AN' I'D HAVE LOTSA FUN GROWIN' THINGS JUST FOR FUN—
DARRELL McCLURE
THERE IS MUCH WISDOM IN THE OLD ADAGE, "ALL WORK AND NO PLAY MAKES JACK A DULL BOY." BUT OUR COUNTRY IS AT WAR AND OUR ONLY THOUGHT MUST BE—HOW CAN I HELP MY COUNTRY TO WIN?
WE CANNOT BE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS, BUT WE CAN DO OUR SHARE! YESTERDAY, LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY EXPRESSED A CHILDISH WISH THAT WAS IN REALITY A PRACTICAL PATRIOTIC PLAN—
—IN WHICH COUNTLESS MILLIONS OF PATRIOTIC CHILDREN CAN PERFORM A LABOR OF LOVE FOR THEIR COUNTRY—LIKE ALL GREAT IDEAS, IT IS SIMPLE AND PRACTICAL—BRIEFLY, IT MEANS EVERY CHILD WILL SPEND ONE HOUR EACH DAY WORKING FOR OUR COUNTRY
HOW MANY OF YOU WILL VOLUNTEER TO DEVOTE ONE HOUR OF YOUR PLAYTIME EACH DAY TO—
I WILL!
ME, TOO!! SURE
HURRAY!
WHEN DO WE START?
count me in, too
LET'S START IN
DARRELL McCLURE
GLORYOSKY, ZERO, I'M SO HAPPY I COULD BAWL—I TOLD MR OLIVER I WISHT I HAD A LITTLE TINY PIECE OF GROUND TO GROW THINGS ON AN' PRETEND I WAS A GROWN-UP FARMER
AN' NOW MR OLIVER IS GONNA GIVE ALL THE KIDS A LITTLE PIECE OF GROUND FOR THEIR VERY-OWN AN' TEACH THEM TO RAISE STUFF TO EAT ON THEIR OWN LITTLE FARM
THEY'LL PLANT THE SEED AN' WORK AN HOUR EVERY DAY RAKING AN' HOEING, WATERING, AN' PULLING WEEDS AN' TAKING CARE OF THEIR FARM—AN' PRETTY SOON EACH KID WILL HARVEST A LITTLE CROP OF NICE VEGETABLES—
DARRELL McCLURE
THEY WON'T SELL THEIR CROP—THEY'LL JUST GIVE IT AWAY FREE FOR NOTHIN', SO EVERYONE WILL HAVE LOTSA NICE, FRESH STUFF TO EAT—'CAUSE MR OLIVER SEZ FOOD IS JUST AS IMPORTANT AS BULLETS AN' THE COUNTRY NEEDS "VITAMINS FOR VICTORY"
—BUT I DON'T KNOW HOW TO GROW STUFF—
AND I DON'T KNOW WHAT TO GROW
I'M GONNA GROW BANANAS—I LIKE BANANAS!
G'WAN, YOU CAN'T GROW WHAT YOU WANT—YOU GOTTA GROW WHAT THE COUNTRY NEEDS
MR OLIVER SAID IT WAS ANNIE ROONEY'S IDEA—ANNIE CAN TELL US JUST WHAT TO DO
OH, GEE—I'M TOO DUMB TO TELL ANYONE WHAT TO DO—I JUST SAID TO MR. OLIVER—I WISHT I OWNED A TINY LITTLE PIECE OF GROUND AN' I'D HAVE LOTSA FUN PRETENDIN' I WAS A REAL FARMER—
DARRELL McCLURE
'COURSE, I WAS JUST WISHIN', BUT MR OLIVER SEZ IT WAS EASY TO MAKE THAT WISH COME TRUE—MR. OLIVER WILL TELL US WHAT TO DO AN' I'LL BETCHA WE'LL HAVE LOTSA FUN DOIN' IT
IT IS A JOY TO SEE ALL MY LITTLE GUESTS SO EAGER TO BEGIN WORKING ON THEIR OWN TINY "VICTORY FARMS"—AND I PROMISE YOUR LABOR WILL BE CROWNED WITH SUCCESS—
FARMING IS ONE OF THE OLDEST VOCATIONS ON EARTH AND LIKE ALL WORTH-WHILE THINGS, IT REQUIRES KNOWLEDGE AND TRAINING—BEGINNING MONDAY, YOU WILL ALL SPEND ONE HOUR EACH DAY IN OUR HOTHOUSE, LEARNING THE VERY USEFUL ART OF GROWING FOOD—
YOU WILL SOON DISCOVER HOW EASY IT IS FOR ANY CHILD TO LEARN HOW TO GROW BEETS, CARROTS ONIONS AND FOODS OUR COUNTRY NEEDS—AND WHEN SPRING COMES YOU WILL EACH HAVE YOUR OWN TINY "VICTORY FARM"—
WHILE EACH FARM WILL NOT BE MUCH LARGER THAN A CARPET, A MILLION SUCH FARMS, PLUS THE LABOR OF YOUR LITTLE HANDS, WILL PRODUCE A CROP OF FOOD STUFFS THAT WILL PROVE OF THE GREATEST VALUE TO OUR COUNTRY
D. McC.
OH, I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO START TO LEARN HOW TO GROW THINGS ON ONE OF THE LITTLE "VICTORY FARMS" MR. OLIVER IS GOING TO GIVE US
I HOPE SPRING COMES EARLY THIS YEAR
WELL, THE FARM SCHOOL OPENS MONDAY—INSTEAD OF READIN', WRITIN' AN' 'RITHMETIC, WE'LL BE LEARNIN' 'BOUT HOW TO GROW LOTSA SWELL VEGETABLES—SO OUR COUNTRY KIN WIN THE WAR
WHAT DOES MR OLIVER MEAN BY THE SLOGAN, "VITAMINS FOR VICTORY"?? I DON'T EVEN KNOW WHAT A VITAMIN LOOKS LIKE!
OH, YOU CAN'T SEE VITAMINS—
DARRELL McCLURE
MR OLIVER SEZ THEY ARE TEENY WEENY LITTLE SEEDS THAT ARE TOO SMALL TO SEE, BUT FRESH VEGETABLES ARE JUST FULL OF 'EM—MR OLIVER SEZ VITAMINS MAKE FOLKS STRONG AN' HEALTHY AN' THAT'S WHY HE WANTS US TO REMEMBER, "VITAMINS FOR VICTORY"
